SENATE SPOTLIGHT SCANS REPUBLICAN RECORDS FOR BONDS

Books Of Chicago Bank
Are Searched For Liberty Bonds

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—The senate's search for new traces of the Continental Trading Company's mysterious $3,080,000 liberty bond "slush fund" was centered today upon the accounts of the Republican national committee in the Continental and Commercial Trust Company at Chicago.

Government experts studied a list of deposits made in the Chicago bank by the Republican committee in October and November, 1923. In the latter month, the Republican deposits totaled $300,000 while over the period of the 1920 campaign, they exceeded a million dollars.

Three things made the senate public lands committee view the account with interest. First, there was the $300,000 deposit in a single month, exactly three years after the 1920 campaign and at a time when the Republican national committee faced a huge deficit.

Second, it was this bank to which the Dominion Bank of Canada shipped more than $2,300,346 in 1911 in behalf of the Continental trading company. Third, the Republican national committee used this account to pay off debts incurred in eastern banks.

The transfer of Continental funds to the Chicago bank was revealed by officials of the Dominion Bank of Canada some time ago. The purpose of the transfer was not revealed. The Chicago bank, however, was merely used as a depository and was not otherwise interested in the transaction.

In its determination to learn whether the Republican committee had largely in the Continental "profits" through donations from Harry F. Sinclair, the committee will call Will H. Hays, former Republican national committee man, some time next week. Hays will be a voluntary witness.

CONVICT SAVAGE OF POSTAL ROBBERY

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 24.—George "Red" Savage early today was found guilty by a federal jury which deliberated thirteen hours on the $20,000 Pawtucket Post-office robbery case, the largest post-office robbery in the United States. "Pawtucket Johnny" Conley, implicated with him, was found not guilty.

Conley was acquitted on all six counts in the indictment brought against him, while Savage was found guilty of four of the six counts.

HUNGARY IGNORES DEMANDS

REFUSES TO ANSWER REQUEST OF LEAGUE TO HOLD EVIDENCE

Machine Guns Will Be Auctioned Off As Planned

GENEVA, Feb. 24.—Hungary has refused to comply with the request of the League of Nations council that the machine guns shipped into that country from Italy be held as "evidence" for the League investigation next month, it was learned this afternoon. It is not certain whether the Hungarians have sold the machine guns or ordered them destroyed. There were between 500 and 600 cases in the shipment.

The incident has caused a great deal of criticism. "This is a nice way for Hungary to thank the League of Nations for the restoration of Hungarian finances," one official told International News Service.

It is felt in League circles that Hungary's action will force the League as a whole to act. Hungary has weakened her middle European position. It is understood that the support she has been receiving from Germany and Italy has been withdrawn.

Unless a satisfactory explanation is given by Hungary to the League council and the Budapest government apologizes it is unlikely that Hungary will be invited to join the new middle European entente proposed by Dr. Benes, president of the security commission.

BUDAPEST, Feb. 24.—Count Bethlen, the Hungarian premier, has sent a communication to the secretariat of the League of Nations stating that the auction of the Italian machine guns seized at St. Gotthard will proceed as planned despite the urgent warning of the president of the League council that the arms be held as "evidence," it was learned today. The auction of the machine guns was set for this afternoon.

Count Bethlen stated, however, that Hungary would give all the information available when the League council begins its investigation into the shipment of the arms next month. The League is particularly anxious to know who ordered the machine guns and why.

A newspaper in Graz, Austria, published a report on Monday that the machine guns were being destroyed under supervision of an international committee including a representative of the League of Nations. Subsequent developments proved this report untrue.

EDUCATORS BEGIN
BOSTON INVASION

BOSTON, Feb. 24.—Educators to the number of 10,000 started today an invasion of this city. The fifty-eighth annual convention of the National Educational Association will open tomorrow and continue to March 1.

Dr. Joseph M. Gwinn, superintendent of schools of San Francisco, and president of the department of superintendents of the N. E. A., will be in charge of the convention. Dr. Gwinn will be assisted by Miss Cornelia S. Adair, of Richmond, Va., the president of the N. E. A. At the closing ceremony of the convention, Mrs. Evangeline L. Lindbergh, of Detroit, mother of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, will be made a life member of the organization and will be presented with a special medal. Col. Lindbergh will be in Boston at the time.

The vanguard of the host of educators were here with the opening of the convention of the National Vocational Guidance Association. Various stores and manufacturing plants were visited today and a pilgrimage was made to a manufacturing plant in Framingham.

HINKLER IS FORCED

LONDON, Feb. 24.—Bert Hinkler, Australian aviator, flying from Port Darwin to Cloncurry, was forced down today near his destination, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Melbourne, Australia.

Hinkler, who flew from England to Australia in sixteen days, was making a two-day flight to Bundaberg from Port Darwin.

He will continue to Cloncurry by train tomorrow, the dispatch said.

HOOVER DIPLOMATIC

NEW RADIO BILL WOULD CHANGE ENTIRE BROADCASTING SYSTEM

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—Sweeping changes in the radio broadcasting system of the nation will be forced if congress enacts the new radio bill of the house merchant marine committee, Rep. Davis (D) of Tennessee, said today.

The bill, extending the life of the Federal Radio Commission for one year, requires the commission to divide stations and power equally among the five zones into which the country is apportioned.

An exhaustive investigation had disclosed that the 701 broadcasting stations now doing business are concentrated in a few big cities and states, Davis said.

The biggest changes would be required in the first zone, including New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and New England. That zone now has 35 per cent of all radio broadcasting power and this would be cut to 20 per cent under the bill, he said.

The fourth zone, including Chicago and the northwest, has 27.31 per cent of all power and would also be cut to 20 per cent. The second zone, including Pennsylvania and mid-Atlantic states, would remain about the same, while the central southern and a few western zones would double their radio broadcasting power.

Neither side is entirely satisfied, but neither side is entirely disappointed. Hence the practical politicians of Washington were ready today to accord the palm to the cabinet candidate for the presidency for shrewdness in handling an explosive subject.

The dries publicly professed themselves satisfied with Mr. Hoover's assertion that he did not favor the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, and that he was in favor of the "efficient, vigorous and sincere" enforcement of all laws enacted thereunder.

The wets proclaimed themselves satisfied with the fact that Mr. Hoover conspicuously did not endorse the divine wisdom of the Volstead act, nor did he state, as Senator Borah invited him to state, that he would oppose its modification.

He pointedly ignored that part of the Borah questionnaire and he was similarly silent on the question of whether he believed in letting each state establish its own definition of what is and what is not intoxicating liquor under the eighteenth amendment. Thus he refused to mortgage his future on the broad question of modification.

Down deep, the dries are a little more dissatisfied with the Hoover letter than are the wets. But the fact is not being proclaimed from the house-tops.

Anti-Saloon League officials privately voiced some disappointment over the fact that Mr. Hoover neglected to say he believed implicitly in the wisdom of the Volstead act.

HERE'S ACTUAL ECONOMY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—All records for economy in federal government have been captured by the Federal Radio Commission.

Three members, O. H. Caldwell, H. A. Lafont and Sam Pickard, are donating their services to the government; unwillingly, however, these officials receiving no salary because of failure of the senate to confirm their nominations.

Only E. O. Sylkes, acting chairman, is on a salary basis. Since the 64th congress adjourned without providing funds for its operation, the radio commission "borrowed" personnel, such as stenographers, clerks and experts, from other departments and obtained quarters at the commerce department.

Some funds were secured from the radio division of the commerce department, while a considerable volume of old equipment, discharged by other governmental units, was pressed into service.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 24.—Wets and dries of the house of representatives, deadlocked over the correct wording of "Columbia, the Gem of Ocean," today had a special committee investigating with instructions to report on Tuesday.

The trouble started following the Washington Birthday exercises when the first lines of the final chorus were read:

SECRETARY AVOIDS OFFENDING EITHER REPLYING TO BORAH

Both Wets And Dries
Satisfied With

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—Herbert Hoover appeared today to have accomplished the seeming miracle of stating his position on prohibition without mortally offending either the fanatical dries or the wringing wets.

Neither side is entirely satisfied, but neither side is entirely disappointed. Hence the practical politicians of Washington were ready today to accord the palm to the cabinet candidate for the presidency for shrewdness in handling an explosive subject.

BARON WRANGEL PLANS TO LEAD ARMY AGAINST SOVIET RUSSIA

Former "White" Army Chief Can Call On 40,000
Men At Opportune Time, He Says—
Await Bolshevik Fall.

BRUSSELS, Feb. 24.—Baron Wrangel, who has announced his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination, poses for his picture while reading letters of congratulation.

Baron Wrangel broke his silence today that he is only awaiting another opportunity to return to Russia at the head of an army to fight the Reds.

The baron claims to have an "army" of 40,000 men under his command. He says they are scattered over Europe but will unite when he gives the command, Baron Wrangel says he is "patiently waiting until the Russians rise up against bolshevism as they rose against czarism." He claims that his fight is not actually against the Soviets, "but is to give the Russians their liberty."

DRUG ADDICT KNOWN TO AUTHORITIES IS SOUGHT FOR MURDER

Remorse Shown In Confession Sent To Police

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—Search for the fiend who callously murdered Miss Margaret Brown, cultured governess, by burning her to death when she resisted his advances, centered today in "The Swamp," the slum section of Newark, N. J., and a rendezvous of criminals and dope fiends.

The identity of the "torch slayer," hidden in his letter of confession, which he enclosed with the two $1,000 bonds and one $500 banknote he sent the police yesterday, is believed to be known and his arrest only hours away.

He is a drug addict who comes from a well-to-do, if not wealthy New York family, according to the New Jersey constabulary. They say his fondness for narcotics was engendered while he attended a college of medicine in Greater New York and that he flunked out of the University while within sight of an M. D. degree.

Within twenty-four hours he will be under arrest, Captain John J. Lamb, of troop B, New Jersey State Police, declared this morning.

The man who committed this crime is known to us. You reporters will be amazed when you learn who he is. He's a man spoiled by dope. Lately he became so notorious about his snuffing of it that New Jersey police got to be pretty wise to him.

The confession was mailed Tuesday, which would give the fugitive ample time to get a good start on the authorities if he has left Newark. He said he met the governess in New York City, drove her to "Lovers' Lane" alongside Woodland Grove, a New Jersey Park, and when she resisted his advances, struck her on the head.

Thinking her dead, he poured gasoline on her unconscious form and put a match to it while she was still alive. She was found ablaze by passing motorists at 11:10 p. m. Monday night.

Others are actors and painters. Each contributes one per cent of his salary for the cause of victory. When one falls sick he is cared for out of a special fund.

We are awaiting better days. One cannot tell if they are near. The regime of the bolsheviks may fall suddenly, and again it may stand for a long while.

"The mass of people detest the existing government of Russia, but despite their dislike Moscow has enough support from the Red Army and the urban populations to continue in power. As for the overthrow of Bolshevism I foresee a popular uprising. We do not desire particularly to put another sovereign on the Russian throne. A strong government is indispensable; it does not matter much whether Russia becomes an empire, monarchy or republic."

Baron Wrangel says his army was never defeated. He declared "circumstances compelled it to retreat."

Preservation of the S. and X. line as an operating unit is thought to have motivated the proposition of the Dayton company. In the event the offer is not accepted, it is considered a foregone conclusion that the S. and X. management will apply to the public utility commission to suspend operations, in which event the line would be scrapped.

The D. and X. and S. and X. traction lines have joint terminals in Xenia, are mutual feeders of each other and the operation of both lines under one management would bring about possible economies, it is believed.

Nearly two hundred guests who were asleep in the building when the fire was discovered, shortly before midnight, on the seventh floor, reached the street in safety.

FLAME FORCED TO LAND-TO TRY AGAIN

IMPERIAL, Cal., Feb. 24.—A fourth attempt to lower the world's mark for sustained flying will be made here within a few days. It was announced today by the pilots of the giant Zenith—Albatross monoplane, which was forced down yesterday after having remained aloft a little less than ten hours.

Failure of the third attempt to break the endurance record was due to the snapping of a crystallized rocker arm in the right wing motor.

The pilots of the craft are Charles F. Rocheville, Alvin K. Peterson and Jack Reid.

GOLD GOES BEGGIN'
—AND IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—It is not often that gold goes a-begging. But that is the case with $5,000,000 in gold that has just arrived here from Soviet Russia. Owing to a government ban against Russian gold the precious metal was not taken to the assay office which is a formality before it can be received by the Federal Reserve Bank.

The gold is lying in the vaults of the Equitable Trust Company and the Chase National Bank awaiting a special ruling by the treasury department. In the meantime the Soviet government is losing about $700 daily in interest on the gold.

GRAND HAVEN, Mich., Feb. 24.—A bullet through the heart was the answer of Mary Plomodon, 10, to the challenge of William Schinn, 17-year-old high school student and football player, that she could not hit him with a .22 caliber rifle.

The shooting was accidental, according to Coroner Henry J. Boer. He said there would be no inquest. "I let you go, you can't hit me," Schinn is reported to have challenged, running as he made the remark.

Failing to realize the danger involved, Mary shouldered the rifle, aimed and shot Schinn in the back.

REPUBLICAN PARTY LEADERS ENDORSE NEW NAVAL PROGRAM

Predict Passage Of Bill
In Congress; Some Opposition

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—America's newest naval building program as drafted by the house naval affairs committee was endorsed by republican leaders today and its adoption by congress predicted.

Although some dissatisfaction was expressed because the program does not bring American naval strength to parity with Great Britain, it was characterized as "a step in the right direction."

The building of fifteen cruisers and one aircraft carrier, all to be laid down in three years and completed in six at a cost of $274,000,000, would round out the present badly balanced navy, exponents of the program said.

The door is still left open for President Coolidge to carry out much of the Wilbur $740,000,000 program, it was declared. Authority exists under the 1916 act for the president to seek appropriations for nine destroyer leaders and three submarines.

"I think there is little question but that the program will be adopted by congress," said Speaker Longworth. "It probably is about all that could be expected in the present session."

Rep. Tilson, of Connecticut, republican leader who deserted President Coolidge last year to join the "Big Navy" forces, said the program was "a forward movement."

"The program is not essentially inconsistent with the president's ideas," said Tilson. "It provides for fifteen cruisers in three years and the president suggested twenty-five in five years."

SECREC Y VEILING LINDBERGH PLANS

DETROIT, Feb. 24.—Rest and seclusion at Selfridge Field until late tonight or early tomorrow was the program today for Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, hero of the mystery mission said to involve the inauguration of a new air line.

The flying colonel is the guest of Maj. Thomas G. Langhorne, commandant of the first pursuit group at Selfridge. Secrecy continues to envelop his plans due to his insistence that he be kept out of the public eye.

Lindbergh called off another "mystery mission" hop scheduled for this morning and decided to remain quietly at the field.

NECKLACE MISSING
CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 24.—Police today sought a $5,000 pearl necklace which Mrs. Margaret Munson, of New York, reported she lost in Cleveland, while visiting her husband, Feb. 22. Mrs. Munson, who is the wife of G. W. Munson, head of a local supply house, said she stayed at a downtown hotel, but did not discover her loss until she reached Buffalo, N. Y., yesterday, and wired authorities here.

SECRETARY AVOIDS OFFENDING EITHER REPLYING TO BORAH

Both Wets And Drys
Satisfied With
Situation

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—Herbert Hoover appeared today to have accomplished the seeming miracle of stating his position on prohibition without mortally offending either the fanatical drys or the wringing wets.

Neither side is entirely satisfied, but neither side is entirely disappointed. Hence the practical politicians of Washington were ready today to accord the palm to the cabinet candidate for the presidency for shrewdness in handling an explosive subject.

The drys publicly professed themselves satisfied with Mr. Hoover's assertion that he did not favor the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, and that he was in favor of the "efficient, vigorous and sincere" enforcement of all laws enacted thereunder.

The wets proclaimed themselves satisfied with the fact that Mr. Hoover conspicuously did not endorse the extreme view of the Volstead act, nor did he state, as Senator Borah invited him to state, that he would oppose its modification. He pointedly ignored that part of the Borah questionnaire and he was similarly silent on the question of whether he believed in letting each state establish its own definition of what is and what is not intoxicating liquor under the eighteenth amendment. Thus he refused to mortgage his future on the broad question of modification.

Down deep, the drys are a little more dissatisfied with the Hoover letter than are the wets. But the fact is not being proclaimed from the housetops.

HERE'S ACTUAL ECONOMY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—All records for economy in federal government have been captured by the Federal Radio Commission.

Three members, O. H. Caldwell, H. A. Lafont and Sam Pickard, are donating their services to the government—unwillingly, however, those officials receiving no salary because of failure of the senate to confirm their nominations.

Only E. O. Sykes, acting chairman, is on a salary basis. Since the 69th congress adjourned without providing funds for its operation, the radio commission "starved."

Some funds were secured from the radio division of the commerce department, while a considerable volume of old equipment, discharged by other governmental units, was pressed into service.

STUDENT IMPROVES BUT STILL IN COMA

PAINESVILLE, O., Feb. 24.—Miss Helen Buschmann, Westfield, Mass., a Lake Erie College student, continues to improve, according to her nurse, although she is still unconscious in a hospital here today, forty days after she suffered a fractured skull when struck by a bus at Mentor, O.

Miss Buschmann is given liquid nourishment with a stomach tube.

WETS AND DRYS ARGUE-OVER WORDS OF SONG

O glory to greet now come hither,
With eyes full of love to the brim,
May the wreaths of our heroes
ne'er wither
Nor a star on the banner grow dim.

Representative Fletcher W. Lawton asserted that it should be read:

BARON WRANGEL PLANS TO LEAD ARMY AGAINST SOVIET RUSSIA

Former "White" Army Chief Can Call On 40,000
Men At Opportune Time, He Says—
Await Bolshevik Fall.

BRUSSELS, Feb. 24.—Baron Wrangel, who commanded one of the "White" armies which tried to overthrow the Russian Soviet Government, told International News Service today that he is only awaiting another opportunity to return to Russia at the head of an army to fight the Reds.

The baron claims to have an "army" of 40,000 men under his command. He says they are scattered over Europe but will unite when he gives the command. Baron Wrangel says he is "patiently waiting until the Russians rise up

FERNEDING RENEWS NEGOTIATIONS FOR SPRINGFIELD LINE

Merger Would Save S. and X. From Being Scrapped

The Dayton Xenia Railway Co. has opened negotiations with the Bicknell interests of Cleveland, controlling financial interest in the company, offering to operate the Springfield and Xenia Traction Co. line, it was disclosed Thursday by T. A. Ferneding, president of the former line.

Mr. Ferneding, it is learned, has completed an inspection of the Xenia and Springfield line.

Preservation of the S. and X. line as an operating unit is thought to have motivated the proposition of the Dayton company. In the event the offer is not accepted, it is considered a foregone conclusion that the S. and X. management will apply to the public utility commission to suspend operations, in which event the line would be scrapped.

The D. and X. and S. and X. traction lines have joint terminals in Xenia, are mutual feeders of each other and the operation of both lines under one management would bring about possible economies, it is believed.

HOTEL DESTROYED

GALVESTON, Texas, Feb. 24.—The eight-story Hotel Royal, located on one of the busiest downtown corners of Galveston, today was a smoldering ruin.

GOLD GOES BEGGIN' —AND IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—It is not often that gold goes begging. But that is the case with $5,000,000 in gold that has just arrived here from Soviet Russia. Owing to a government ban against Russian gold the precious metal was not taken to the assay office which is a formality before it can be received by the Federal Reserve Bank. The gold is lying in the vaults of the Equitable Trust Company and the Chase National Bank awaiting a special ruling by the treasury department. In the meantime the Soviet government is losing about $700 daily in interest on the gold.

GRAND HAVEN, Mich., Feb. 24.—A bullet through the heart was the answer of William Plomodon, 10, to the challenge of William Schlinn, from Soviet Russia. Owing to a 17-year-old high school student and football player, that she could not hit him with a .22 caliber rifle.

The shooting was accidental, according to Coroner Henry J. Boer. He said he would not be inquest. "I'll bet you can't hit me," Schlinn is reported to have challenged, running as he made the remark.

Failing to realize the danger involved, Mary shouldered the rifle aimed and shot Schlinn in the back.

DRUG ADDICT KNOWN TO AUTHORITIES IS SOUGHT FOR MURDER

Remorse Shown In Con- fession Sent To Police

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—Search for the fiend who callously murdered Miss Margaret Brown, cultured governess, by burning her to death when she resisted his advances, centered today in "The Swamp," the slum section of Newark, N. J., and a rendezvous of criminals and dope fiends.

The identity of the "torch slayer," hidden in his letter of confession, which he enclosed with the two $1,000 bonds and one $500 banknote, he sent the police yesterday, is believed to be known and his arrest only hours away.

He is a drug addict who comes from a well-to-do, if not wealthy New York family, according to the New Jersey constabulary. They say his fondness for narcotics was engendered while he attended a college of medicine in Greater New York and that he flunked out of the University within sight of an M. D. degree.

When twenty-four hours he will be under arrest, Captain John J. Lamb, of troop B, New Jersey State Police, declared this morning. "The man who committed this crime will be known to us. You reporters are amazed when you learn who he is. He's a man spoiled by dope. Lately he became so notorious about his snuffing of it that New Jersey police got to be pretty wise to him."

The slayer is an unskilled criminal and is in a remorseful frame of mind. He said so in his confession. If he adheres to the threat he made in his letter he will commit suicide when arrest is imminent. He is the owner of a blue Stutz sedan and he wrote the police that he "will drive it to hell"—if necessary to escape.

The confession was mailed Tuesday, which would give the fugitive ample time to get a good start on the authorities if he has left Newark. He said he met the governess in New York City, drove her to "Lovers' Lane" alongside Woodland Grove, a New Jersey Park, and when she resisted his advances, struck her on the head. Thinking her dead, he poured gasoline on her unconscious form and put a match to it while she was still alive. She was found ablaze by passing motorists at 11:10 p. m. Monday night.

OPPOSE MEETING TO PICK CANDIDATE

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Feb. 24.—General opinion developed today to the proposal for a political conference to select a compromise candidate for president. It is unlikely that such a parley will be held.

Gen. Emiliano Chamorro, who is a representative candidate for president, was about the only man in public life who welcomed the compromise proposal. He suggested that the conference be held in Washington.

FLANE FORCED TO LAND-TO TRY AGAIN

IMPERIAL, Cal., Feb. 24.—A fourth attempt to lower the world's mark for sustained flying will be made here within a few days, it was announced today by the pilots of the giant Zenith Albatross monoplane, which was forced down yesterday after having remained aloft a little less than ten hours.

Failure of the third attempt to break the endurance record was due to the snapping of a crystallized rocker arm in the flight wing motor.

The pilots of the craft are Charles F. Rockwell, Alvin K. Peterson and Jack Reid.

M'CORMACK IS MADE CATHOLIC COUNT

LONDON, Feb. 24.—John McCormack, the Irish-American tenor, has been elevated to the papal peerage with the title of count, the Catholic newspaper Universe announced today.

The honor was bestowed by the pope in recognition of the singer's "eminent position in the world of art, together with his faith and the Holy See and his munificent generosity to Catholic causes in the old and new worlds."

McCormack is already a Knight Commander of the papal orders of St. Gregory the Great and of Saint Sylvester.

DARE PROVES FATAL TO SCHOOL ATHLETE

GRAND HAVEN, Mich., Feb. 24.—A bullet through the heart was the answer of William Plomodon, 10, to the challenge of William Schlinn, from Soviet Russia. Owing to a 17-year-old high school student and football player, that she could not hit him with a .22 caliber rifle.

ACTION SEEKING TO QUIET DEED FILED;
OTHER COURT NEWS

Suit seeking to quiet his title to certain real estate claiming that a cloud on the title exists as a result of a mistake in the description of the deed, has been filed in Common Pleas Court by Oscar Werber against Roscoe and Arthur E. Conklin, Ella Conklin Lee, Hazel Laning, Ernest and Herman Corry, Estella Steele, an insane person, all heirs of Henry Conklin, deceased, and J. A. Finney, as guardian of Estella Steele.

Plaintiff claims ownership to certain land acquired by deed from N. Ebner. It is set forth that Ebner in turn acquired the property from W. L. Marshall, received of William Byers; that John S. Bales had deeded it to Byers; that Henry Conklin had deeded it to Bales; and that James A. Johnson, former Greene County sheriff, had deeded it to Conklin.

It is explained by the plaintiff that the real estate was correctly described in the deed of Johnson to Conklin, but that in the deed of Conklin to Bales and all subsequent deeds, including the deed to himself, the description was defective. By mistake, a line was omitted in the description of the deeds and because of the defect, there is a cloud on plaintiff's title to the land, the petition recites.

Defendants are heirs of Henry Conklin, deceased. Plaintiff asks that the defendants be compelled to set up their interest in the land, if any, and that the court declare all their claims invalid. Marshall and Marshall are attorneys for the plaintiff.

PARTITION ORDERED
Partition of property has been authorized by the court in the case of Morris Oglesbee against Marie Wolf, Dorsey H. Oglesbee and Freeman H. Oglesbee in Common Pleas Court. R. B. McKay, C. P. Hazard and Raymond Middleton were named appraisers.

TO APPEAL CASE
In the case of E. W. Moore against Lonnie Pawley in Common Pleas Court, the court ordered the note described in the petition of the plaintiff surrendered and cancelled. Costs in the case are taxed against the defendant. The court fixed the appeal bond at $600 after the defendant gave notice of an intention of filing an appeal.

GIVEN JUDGMENT
Judgment for $218.10, due on a cognovit note, has been awarded in favor of H. E. Sellers in a suit against Mary A. Rugman and Gabe Cooney in Common Pleas Court.

DISMISS CASE
Suit of John T. Harbino, Jr. against David and Mozella Simon has been settled and dismissed at the plaintiff's request in Common Pleas Court.

ESTATE VALUED
Gross value of the estate of Bessie Hart, deceased, is estimated at $1,600 in Probate Court. Debts and the cost of administration total $1,035.50, leaving a net value of $564.50.

GUARDIAN DISCHARGED
J. H. Massie has been discharged as guardian of the estate of William D. Massie, a minor, in Probate Court. The guardian presented a statement to the court showing no real estate has come into his hands as guardian, and that since the appointment was made for the purpose of protecting the estate of his ward, no reason exists for continuance of the trust.

SPRAYING OF FRUIT TREES EXPLAINED

Frank H. Beach, professor of horticulture at the Ohio State University, will be in Greene County February 28 to discuss the spraying of fruit trees. The meeting will be held at the Farm Bureau office in the Federal Bldg. at 1 p. m. Mr. Beach will discuss the spraying program for all kinds of fruits, and would like to have a few locations in the county where Ballou's modified sprays could be demonstrated. These demonstrations can be planned for sometime in March.

Farmers are urged to attend this meeting and get the latest information on spraying and other cultural operations.

Georgia Strieff, 19, and pretty, has put before the district court here. Georgia and Gaskell Warren used to be engaged. When Georgia broke the engagement young Warren became very angry.

"After we split Gaskell took me riding," Georgia told police. "He drove me out into the country, beat me up and then snipped all my hair off until I looked a sight." Georgia, her hair in short strings bought a wig to use until her hair grew out again and then filed a complaint against Warren.

Whether Warren is punished or not does not lessen Georgia's sorrow, for hair-dressers have told her it will be a year before her hair grows to even an ordinary length, she relates.

age so young

YOU'VE known them . . . women who start out in life radiantly fresh and alive. . . . Then something happens. Almost before you know it—their bloom and freshness have gone. . . . Youth without health! What a pathetic thing it is! Pinched, wan cheeks and pain-dulled eyes when, by every right, they should be just beginning to live!

Constipation wrecks health and happiness for thousands of women and men. Stealing beauty. Thieving vitality. It is the cause of untold disease and suffering.

And more's the pity when it can be so surely prevented. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation safely. To prevent it ever beginning its deadly work.

It takes ALL-BRAN to be 100% effective

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is rich in bulk—and it is "bulk" that relieves constipation. It absorbs moisture and carries it through the alimentary canal. Gently distending the intestines—sweeping out poisons and wastes. In a part-bran product, there is seldom enough bulk to do this work effectively. That is why doctors recommend ALL-BRAN. Because it is 100% bran.

Totally unlike habit-forming drugs

ALL-BRAN is infinitely better than dangerous pills and laxatives—which become useless unless the dose is constantly increased. A naturally healthful cereal. Delicious with milk or cream—with fruits or honey added. Use it in cooking too. Sprinkle into soups. Mix with other cereals. Eat two tablespoons daily—chronic cases, every meal. . . .

Be sure you get genuine Kellogg's—the original ALL-BRAN. Don't risk part-bran substitutes which, at best, can be but partially effective. ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers. Served at hotels, restaurants. On diners. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Guaranteed! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold with this definite guarantee: Eat it according to directions. If it does not relieve constipation safely, we will refund the purchase price.

A. C. TURRELL UNION AT COLONIAL TEA PARTY.

Sixty-five women called at the home of Mrs. Charles Erwin, W. Market St., Thursday afternoon when A. C. Turrell, W. C. T. U. en, entertained with a Martha Washington tea.

Assisting Mrs. Erwin in receiving her guests were Mrs. M. A. Sutton, Mrs. Elton Smith, Mrs. E. C. Moorman, Mrs. Charles Riddell, Mrs. B. L. Chambliss and Mrs. William Smith.

A program, in charge of Mrs. Elton Smith, was given during the afternoon for the pleasure of the guests. The musical numbers of the program were given by Mrs. John Watkins, Miss Marjorie Street, Mrs. D. L. Croy, Mrs. Fred Coy and little daughters, Eloise and Dorothy. Readings by Mrs. Ray Brannen and Miss Marjorie Hall, were enjoyed.

Mrs. A. L. Oglesbee, impersonating Betty Washington in Colonial costume, gave an original story from the history of the Washington family, at the birth of George Washington and during Revolutionary days.

Mrs. Oglesbee was assisted by Omilo Halder, who was charming as George Washington. The Erwin home was gay with flags and baskets of flowers.

Refreshments suggestive of Washington's birthday were served by Mrs. I. W. Clouse, Mrs. Ray Brannen, Mrs. Carl Erwin, Mrs. Fred Erwin and Mrs. Frank Edwards. Favors of tiny silk flags were given the guests.

The committee responsible for the happy affair included: Mrs. Elton Smith, Mrs. Jeanette Erwin and Mrs. Ray Brannen.

PUPILS HONOR THEIR TEACHERS WITH DINNER

Teachers of Spring Hill School were honored by their girl pupils at the home of Marjorie Snyder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Snyder, Chestnut St., Friday. A chicken dinner was served at three prettily decorated tables.

The guests found their fortunes secreted in nuts at each cover and the reading of these caused much merriment. Covers were laid for Miss Eleanor Alexander, Miss Irma Glass, Miss Harriet Keller, Mrs. Helen Spahr, Miss Alta Turner and Miss Irene McCarty, and the following pupils:

Marjorie Snyder, Lucille Thompson, Georgetta Barnes, Marion Powell, Helen Fudge, Evelyn Jones, Rachel Hurley, Rachel Bell, Julia Hook, Marjorie Clark, Betty Savage, Ruth Pramer, Doris Watkins, and Mabel Bath.

Extension of sanitary sewer system on E. Church and E. Market Sts., was authorized by City Commission at its regular meeting Thursday night.

Commission took preliminary action following receipt of petitions, signed by a majority of the benefited property owners, requesting the extensions.

The petitions, submitted to City Manager S. O. Hale, asked that sewers on E. Church St. be extended about 1,600 feet from Orchard St. to Patton St., and on E. Market St. a distance of 600 feet.

Commissioners instructed City Manager Hale to direct the city engineer to prepare plans and specifications and submit an estimate of the cost of the proposed improvements.

The next legal step in the procedure will be the drawing up of resolutions declaring it necessary and beneficial to the city to make the extensions.

Routine matters occupied the attention of commissioners the remainder of the session.

Extension of sanitary sewer systems on E. Church and E. Market Sts., was authorized by City Commission at its regular meeting Thursday night.

Commission took preliminary action following receipt of petitions, signed by a majority of the benefited property owners, requesting the extensions.

The petitions, submitted to City Manager S. O. Hale, asked that sewers on E. Church St. be extended about 1,600 feet from Orchard St. to Patton St., and on E. Market St. a distance of 600 feet.

Commissioners instructed City Manager Hale to direct the city engineer to prepare plans and specifications and submit an estimate of the cost of the proposed improvements.

The next legal step in the procedure will be the drawing up of resolutions declaring it necessary and beneficial to the city to make the extensions.

Routine matters occupied the attention of commissioners the remainder of the session.

BELLBROOK

The bus line resumed activities again Thursday morning.

The local Welfare Club served lunch at the Farmers Institute on Monday and Tuesday.

A number have united with the church since the beginning of the special services which are still in progress.

Bellbrook meted out revenge on Spring Valley at the new schoolhouse on Friday night when they staged a come-back to the tune of 35 to 26. Bellbrook girls also won from the Spring Valley girls.

A fire which might have proven most disastrous was probably narrowly averted in the club room located on the second floor of the Jr. O. U. A. M. Building one day last week. The particulars of the fire have not been learned, some leaning to one theory and some to another.

The closing number of the lecture course, "When a Feller Needs a Friend," was well rendered in the presence of a large crowd at the schoolhouse on Tuesday night. Each played their parts well and deserve much credit considering the short time they had to prepare.

Those taking part were: James Turner, Lawrence Kemp, Knisley Smith, Wilfred Gibbons, Thomas Blackburn, Gertrude Thomas, Pauline Anthony, Dora Doggett and Gladys Roland and Teresa Ryne.

Coughs Stopped
Almost Instantly

A New, Safe Prescription

A famous physician's prescription called Thoxine relieves the most stubborn coughs that otherwise might hang on for weeks. Acts on new theory, relieves the inflammation and irritation which is almost always the cause of the cough, stops it like magic. Thoxine is equally good for sore throat, for which purpose it is far superior to gargles. Contains no dope, chloroform or other harmful drugs. Once used you will never be without it. Pleasant tasting, easy to take and safe for the whole family. Remember one swallow stops night coughs or sore throat within 15 minutes or money back. 35c, 60c, and $1.00. Sold by Sohn's Drug Store and all good drug stores.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

PRAISE GOD—Praise ye the Lord. Praise the Lord, O my soul. While I live will I praise the Lord.—Psalm 146:1.

LET THEM ALL TALK

Every once in a while a naval officer or any army officer gets into trouble through the ancient expedient of talking too much. Just what is too much talk for an officer in the defensive arms of our government? Well, that depends upon what the talk is about and how disagreeable the opinions of the talker may be to those in supreme command.

There is a good deal of sentiment among citizens against talking officers who conduct propaganda for larger navies, bigger armies, more gas and bloodier wars. And there is a decidedly stiff opposition in official quarters against officers who tell the public about any alleged mismanagement within the army or navy.

But why not let them all talk. Provided, of course, that all civilians be permitted to talk back without let or hindrance.

Our navy needs well-informed publicity. It needs advocacy in the public prints and on the rostrum. Not merely speeches in congress for bigger appropriations, but speeches out of congress by Annapolis graduates who know what they are talking about.

Maybe we need the biggest navy in the world. If we don't need it, who does? Maybe we ought to go right out in the open and tell the world that we expect to maintain a bigger navy and a better navy than any other country; that we have the money to do it, and let him who will challenge our right to spend our money for fighting ships.

Perhaps that would be an effective kind of arms limitation. Maybe the other big navy-builders would pause in their building if they knew, officially and absolutely, that there was no chance of their out-building us.

Effective? Well, relatively effective. It might prove more effective than sinking a lot of expensive warships, just to prove that no other power can sink so many.

RAISING OWN SALARY

Governor and Mrs. Dan Moody of Texas are living on his salary of $4,000 a year. He vetoed the bill to increase his own salary from $4,000 to $10,000, because he took the job at $4,000. The country needs more public officials as conscientious as Governor Moody. Such men are entitled to more pay. But they should not be forced to raise their own salaries.

MAKING THINGS MORE CHEERFUL

The American people are just beginning to learn how to use color effectively in everyday life. The interiors of hotels, for instance, no longer are done in brown and gold, as of yore. Theatres have been brightened up, and some of the old-fashioned gimcrackery abandoned. Bright colors entertain the eye more effectively than tons of gingerbread scrollwork.

Most bridges are stimulating to the imagination. They might be made more stimulating by the application of color.

JUSTICE QUICKLY

Capital punishment, which the state of Michigan doesn't have and which it will soon be considering, may or may not decrease the crime in that state. So far the absence of capital punishment does not seem to have produced more crime in Michigan than one finds in neighbor states. But the best thing to lessen crime that Michigan ever did was to speed up the processes of law to such a degree of rapidity that the man who recently killed a little girl was in prison for life within two or three days after he was caught.

Slow processes in the court, delays of lawyers and judges, red tape, etc., do more to encourage the criminal than the state's freedom from capital punishment. Few potential criminals stop to think through their course. The fact that the state has or has not capital punishment enters little into their plans. They rely on the tricks of the law and the delays of the courts.

If we are going to hang them, let's hang them right away as they do in England and Canada. If we are going to make it imprisonment instead of capital punishment, let's lock them up in the fastest possible time, as Michigan did in the Hotelling case.

Speed and certainty are more important issues than the issue of the electric chair.

FAILURE

There is no more pathetic figure than the man who has plenty of real ability, is a hard and earnest worker—but who lacks a personality that wins and holds friends and that inspires loyalty. The quality of leadership, which is a matter of personality more than ability, is the major quality of man. The whole hope of the world is in leadership. Men who are put in places of importance because of their sincerity, information, and ability, and who can't lead, are particularly sad failures.

AN HOUR OLD

Science makes progress in the discovery of how we do things. But a great darkness is yet to be explored. Why are we here? Where are we going? Who said so?

HAPPINESS

Perhaps the philosophy of happiness might be put in one word: Moderation.

New Yorker

—By—
BURTON RASCOE

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—One of the most frivolous fashions left among men who think well of themselves and dress with an eye to the sketches in Vanity Fair seems to be on the wane, even in effete New York, where a male may wear spats and carry a stick and still not have the street urchins guffaw at him. I refer to the flossy custom of wearing a flower in the buttonhole. I must admit to a certain self-consciousness in the matter, myself, but still I enjoy seeing large, well-fed fellows in derbies and Chesterfield overcoats, sporting a carnation or even a gardenia, and looking, if not like a bridegroom, at least like some devil-of-a-lad hustling to a rendezvous. In the summertime, when I have the garden as an excuse, I have been known to run to an occasional carnation or pansy in my lapel, but I must confess to a certain diffidence at the idea of galloping around town adorned with anything gaudier than these. My fellowmen probably have the same feeling, and so the charming custom is on the wane.

With living places small and stuffy, and with an adjoining population that sneers at movies and has no money for plays, Greenwich Village centers its amusement in its restaurants. Such places as the Archway serve dinner to perhaps a score of patrons each night. Then the tables are cleared and the customers spend the evening playing cards or chess, or checkers. Or they just talk and drink coffee—which costs twenty-five cents a cup when you order nothing else. Such places don't make a lot of money, but the owners are happy in the philanthropic work of providing a haven for Bohemia's psychopaths.

A dollar bill, pasted on the outside of a shop window opposite Grand Central station the other day, remained intact, to the surprise of the proprietor. About 100,000 persons passed it during the course of the day, some of them, presumably hard up or hungry. But not a soul tried to make away with it. Who says this is a city of crooks?

Kellygrams

By FRED C. KELLY

ODD PHASES OF FOOT TRAFFIC

One of the strange caprices of the pedestrian throng was shown a few years ago in Houston, Texas. At the intersection of two principal streets was the busiest corner in town. A cigar company had a store on that corner. The property was bought for a big bank building, and the cigar company had to move. It had its choice of establishing a store alongside of the bank, or seeking a location on one of the other three corners at that intersection. The location next to the bank they did not consider at all. The two corners that ranked second and third in desirability were unavailable. That left the cigar company only one corner—the quietest of the four. They took that one. And then what do you suppose happened? Traffic began to increase at that corner until it was the busiest of all—busier, even, than the one that had been first choice.

This was due partly to the fact that the cigar company used a lot of brilliant illumination about its place and partly because the bank on the busy corner made the traffic there decrease and seek an outlet elsewhere.

Men who have studied location values always advise against placing a retail establishment—particularly one dealing in everyday articles—next to a bank. A bank makes for a dead locality. Or, at any rate, it tends to decrease rather than increase traffic. Being open only about six hours a day on the average, a bank has drawing power only for those six hours. Indeed, a bank has not much drawing power even when it is open. Few persons have occasion to visit a bank compared with the total number on the street. Most of those who do enter it have their minds occupied with finance and are in no mood to stop and buy a gingersnap, or whatever is sold next door.

"Over there's a bank building on the best retail corner in town," he said, "and what good does it do the bank? Just as many people would deal with the bank if it were three doors up the street in the middle of the block. Putting a bank on a busy corner like that is an extravagance."

However, from the banker's point of view, the location may not be an extravagance. The bank may derive much indirect benefit. Every man who passes that busy corner is impressed, not only by the fact that the bank exists, but that it is able to build on a valuable piece of ground. This bringing of the bank to people's attention, along with the visible suggestion of prosperity, doubtless leads many a person to do his banking there instead of at another institution up the street.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

The Morning Beauty Regime

In the morning start the day right with at least one glass of cold water—two if it's comfortably possible. Personally, I take as many as four or five.

Instead of stumbling from your bed to your bath, stop a few minutes and breathe great, deep breaths of the cool morning air. All the essence of health is flying in at your window. Use it! If you take a morning shower, don't make it a too warm one, or you'll find yourself sleepy when you're through, and too subject to colds afterwards.

If you can stand a cold bath, or at least a cold or cool shower so much the better, but don't shock your system in the name of health. It isn't good for you. A good series of exercises will give the required stimulus to your circulation.

But first cleanse your skin. Wash your eyes, spread on a little skin clearing cream again, to coax back the lovely healthy skin of early youth. When ready to dress, finish with a toning lotion.

In the winter time use a foundation or a protective base for your make-up. Select a conservative powder—one that tones nicely with the natural shade of your skin. There are powders made in a wide range of colors. The best of which, in my opinion, are made on a soothing cold cream base which protects as well as beautifies. For your rouge, red raspberry is, perhaps, the most universally becoming daytime shade, blending delightfully into the natural warm colorings of American women. Your lips, stick, of course, must match your rouge.

There has been a great deal said about the need of breakfasts for the business woman. The fast from evening dinner to next day's luncheon is too long to be healthy, particularly when you stop to realize that it actually is a medical fact that the body reaches its lowest resistance during the night hours.

I do not condemn one cup of coffee. I do condemn the deplorable habit which a great many women have of bolting two and three cups. If they would drink milk instead, they would soon feel the benefits physically.

For the woman who is burdened with a gracious abundance of pounds, orange juice can become an excellent breakfast habit! But take plenty of it. Three oranges is none too many. It is refreshing, non-fatening and non-stimulating, and will supply the body with badly needed vitamins which are all important to health.

For the average woman of normal health, either orange juice or a raw apple is such a fine start for a good day! Some of the whole grain or bran cereals are excellent. Substitute whole wheat toast instead of the white bread which is not good for you, and have your egg boiled or poached instead of fried.

We have heard so much about "starting the day right." Begin to develop normal health habits, and see how tremendously your mind and body will respond.

Diet and Health

BALD SPOTS

"A nineteen-year-old college girl has several bald spots on the back of her head, some of them as large as a half-dollar. These began after an attack on the flu 10 years ago. She recently consulted a 'hair specialist' (if there be such a thing), who prescribed certain tonics, and also suggested a diet, which is extremely hard for her to follow on account of her having to eat at the table with the other girls and partake of the college food. Will you please suggest a remedy."

"H."

There is no physician who designates himself as a "hair specialist," and anyone so designating himself and giving diets and tonics for hair troubles, is certainly questionable. Some of the so-called "hair specialists" who examine hair under the microscope, many of them prescribing treatments after an examination of hair sent through the mails, are fakes, pure and simple. (No, they're not so simple.)

Go to the library and get the October, 1927, issue of Hygeia and read the article, "Some Bald Facts," by Dr. Arthur J. Cramp, M. H. It's about one of these "specialists." His strong line was that he could make a diagnosis from specimens of hair sent through the mail.

Some hair was plucked from the fox-fur cuff of a woman's coat, and sent in. Came back this letter: "A microscopic examination discloses that the roots were in a seriously undernourished condition."

I've gone into this at length because I want to expose some of the methods of these fakers. I do not want you to get the impression that all of those who treat the scalp for hair disorders are fakes, by any means. Some of them undoubtedly give good massage and other treatments. However, in the case such as you speak of, H., the girl should certainly

SUGGESTIONS

A housewife suggests this method for keeping her kitchen clean in muddy weather. These paper mats may be burned, used, saving the labor of washing. "I save all corrugated cardboard that packages sometimes come wrapped up in. This can be cut into pieces the size of ordinary door mats. I keep one, corrugated side up, on the floor at my back door, so that when the children and delivery people come in they can wipe their shoes on this improvised mat."

Work Table

Have you an old sewing machine that is lumbering the earth? A woman reports that she made it do duty as a handy work table. "We had an old sewing machine that had been relegated to the shed. The idea came to me of removing the treadle wheel and top and covering the top of the machine with linoleum. The result was a nice work table. The drawers are handy to keep things."

have gone to a physician who specializes in skin disorders (a dermatologist).

Alopecia Areata

Now I'll tell you something about the girl's trouble. It is a form of baldness known as Alopecia Areata, and the cause is not known. It may follow some diseases, or it may appear in perfectly healthy individuals. Some physicians believe there is a germ infection, and therefore it may be communicable. Many of the cases get well of themselves, especially in youth, without any treatment.

First there should be a thorough physical examination, and any areas of infection, such as from the teeth and tonsils, etc., must be cleared up. The local treatment, Jackson says, is summed up in two words: Patience and Stimulation. The spots are painted with ammonia water, lactic acid in 50 per cent water solution—all of which you will have to see your physician about. Massage is useful, and the ultra-violet ray.

The diet should be a full balanced diet, and not a restricted one that the girl was put on. Send for our article on the care of the hair and scalp, H. (Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope, and 2 cents).

Tomorrow: Answers to Correspondents.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—Washington is politically radioactive enough this time to suit anybody.

In 1924 it was the deadliest place on the map.

It was headquarters for only one presidential prospect of any consequence, and his prospect was such a cinch that nobody took any interest in it. Calvin Coolidge was absolutely certain to get the Republican nomination anyway, so, in advance, that was finished business.

Al Smith never visited the capital at all; Bill McAdoo and John W. Davis very briefly and infrequently.

All the scrapping was elsewhere. Besides, there was only one good scrap anywhere—Smith's and McAdoo's. That was a ham-fingered, but otherwise the whole campaign, pre- and post-convention, was monotonous—a mere walkover.

Oh, what a difference this year!

Instead of only one candidate here, the town swarms with 'em. Secretary Hoover is making medicine in the commerce department. Jim Watson, Charlie Curtis and Frank Willis are falling over each other on the senate floor. Frank O. Lowden isn't present in person, but his political Siamese twin, Charley Dawes, is looking out for his interests—or some body's. The Coolidge dis-harmonies are still trying to figure two terms out of two terms and a fraction.

Al Smith-ites and anti-Al Smith-ites fight daily battles all over the Capital and adjoining Senate and House office buildings, and up and down the subway underneath 'em. Jim Reed bushwhacks indiscriminately, and Al Ritchie hovers on the outskirts, only a short street car ride away, an Annapolis.

Assorted "favorite sons" and miscellaneous "dark horses" cavort around everywhere.

Both sides are split seven ways for Sunday.

As all the world knows, the Republicans are busted wide open on the industries-versus-agriculture issue; the Democrats are rent in twain on religion, and neither party can even estimate how badly it's subdivided on the wet-and-dry question.

What's more, the Coolidge-ites Republicans accuse the Progressives of conspiring with the Progressives to cram Hoover—by making Coolidge impossible—down the G. O. P.'s throat, on the theory that Coolidge can't be beaten but may be Hoovered. They're afraid the plot will succeed, too, and the idea of the Democrats dictating a Republican nomination, to their own Democratic advantage, drives 'em almost frantic.

The oil investigation's another source of anxiety. There are "old guardsmen" in both political camps who are suspicious of it.

Regardless of party, none of them likes the hint of campaign contributions of "big business" origin—"big business" having such a reputation for flanking rival tickets alike, in order to be on the right side, no matter who wins, that it's hard to tell where the chips will fall, once somebody begins hewing.

At the best, very much of that kind of talk will make it mighty hard to handle the money end of the campaign, which is very promising to be one in which plenty of spandulix will be unusually handy.

The Progressive investigators are the only folk who are really enjoying the inquiry. They've no hopes of any big contributions, anyway.

There's no choking them off, of course. They'd raise the country with their outcries before the "safe and sane" old-time element could get a good grip on their windpipes. But they're a pest at a time like this, when the managers already have more than enough to worry about, without a constant threat of the unforeseen to upset all their calculations.

TOO MUCH HEART

I am afraid many of my correspondents allow their hearts to rule their heads. They chide their erring lovers, and then when the young men resent it, and "get mad," they repent in sackcloth and ashes and appeal to me to bring the boys back.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: About a year ago I met a boy two years older than I. I went with him about four months and loved him madly. He always treated me with respect. Then one night he tried to get fresh and got mad because I repulsed him, and wouldn't speak. Mrs. Lee, it is killing me. I sent him a Christmas card and he answered it. Do you think there is a chance for him? Would you write to him?"

"Blue-Eyed Bill." Don't weaken, sister. If your boy friend really got "fresh," as you say, he deserved your rebuke and if you find out he is a bit of a punk, he'll probably come back much chastened. Don't break your little heart over him, and don't write.

Johnny Wind thinks my "former good judgment in answering is deserting me" because he does not agree with my answer to "Randy" or "I agree with his views that a girl shouldn't go with married men or cheapen herself, and that man is foolish to marry a girl he can't trust, so we have no quarrel, Johnny Wind, but I still think that the majority of girls prefer a man who doesn't drink."

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I have been going with a boy for over a year. He seems to care for me, but when we go into company he acts timid. Please tell me how I can make him notice me in company." "Blue Eyes." He is probably reserved, Blue Eyes, and doesn't parade his feelings in public, which is very commendable. Accept your friend as he is and be glad.

CRUEL TWO-LEGS AND KIND TWO-LEGS

"What a cruel, cruel Two-Legs!" cried Snowbird, angrily. "I never met one like that. If I had, I am sure I should hate him and all the rest of his race!"

"Oh, don't say that, please," cried Peter, in distress. "I am terribly sorry, dear Mrs. Bluebird. I don't know what boy it was, but if ever I find out it will never do such a dreadful thing again, if I or my father can help it."

"Father hates cruelty above all things, and he would give that boy a talking to that he would never forget. But don't think all Two-Legs are alike. Most of us would not hurt you for all the world. I am afraid that you were right when you said that you didn't like much, but I can do one thing—make it easy for you and your husband to get something to eat. Do you like suet?"

"Do I?" exclaimed Mrs. Bluebird. "I should say so, and as for my husband—it's his favorite dish!"

"So do I like suet!" cried Snowbird. "Do you know where you can get any, Two-Legs?"

"Yes, and here and now I invite you and your mate, Mrs. Bluebird, and Snowbird, to come every morning to the barberry bush in the lower end of our garden. There you will find a nice fat rabbit. I will hang it there for you."

"Oh, thank you, Boy. You don't know what a treat a bit of suet now and then will be. We had all the delicacies we could eat in the sunny south, but we came back pretty early this season—ran into an unexpected snow storm, and we have had to dine on seeds for the most part ever since!"

"Mrs. Bluebird forgot to be sad, as she thought of the treat in store. Snowbird merrily chirped.

"If you tire on seeds in three days, what would you do if you had to live on them most of the winter?" asked he. "You can't imagine what a feast I shall make on suet. I don't mean that I shall be greedy!" added Snowbird, hastily, "but I shall certainly enjoy it. You are a fine fellow to think of it, Boy!"

"Indeed you are!" agreed Mrs. Bluebird, happily. "What a shame that our youngsters will not be here to have their share."

"But I thought that you said that they were here," cried Peter.

"I asked how they were the minute I saw you and you said they were well."

"So I did," agreed Mrs. Bluebird. "And so they are, and if I must say so, they are as fine a brood of birds as ever a mother raised."

"They are such good tempered fellows every one likes them, although they are apt to be a little down-hearted now and then. But then, you know, sadness is a family trait. All we Bluebirds are sad once in a while. Husband told me why this was so only the other day, but I have forgotten the reason."

"That is one of my own failings, boy. I am a bit stupid, or at least not nearly as clever as husband is. The boys have such a fine taste in dress—they inherit it from their father. You remember what a beautiful coat he always wore, don't you?"

"Indeed I do," cried the boy. "It was a lovely color blue-brighter than that shawl and bonnet you are wearing. And his vest was a pretty reddish-brown trimmed with white. But I haven't finished telling me about the boys. Where are they?"

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

PRAISE GOD—Praise ye the Lord. Praise the Lord, O my soul. While I live will I praise the Lord.—Psalm 146:1.

LET THEM ALL TALK

Every once in a while a naval officer or army officer gets into trouble through the ancient expedient of talking too much. Just what is too much talk for an officer in the defensive arms of our government? Well, that depends upon what the talk is about and how disagreeable the opinions of the talker may be to those in supreme command.

There is a good deal of sentiment among citizens against talking officers who conduct propaganda for larger navies, bigger armies, more gas and bloodier wars. And there is a decidedly stiff opposition in official quarters against officers who tell the public about any alleged mismanagement within the army or navy.

But why not let them all talk. Provided, of course, that all civilians be permitted to talk back without let or hindrance.

Our navy needs well-informed publicity. It needs advocacy in the public prints and on the rostrum. Not merely speeches in congress for bigger appropriations, but speeches out of congress by Annapolis graduates who know what they are talking about.

Maybe we need the biggest navy in the world. If we don't need it, who does? Maybe we ought to go right out in the open and tell the world that we expect to maintain a bigger navy and a better navy than any other country; that we have the money to do it, and let the world challenge our right to spend our money for fighting ships.

Perhaps that would be an effective kind of arms limitation. Maybe the other big navy-builders would pause in their building if they knew, officially and absolutely, that there was no chance of their out-building us.

Effective? Well, relatively effective. It might prove more effective than sinking a lot of expensive warships, just to prove that no other power can sink so many.

RAISING OWN SALARY

Governor and Mrs. Dan Moody of Texas are living on his salary of $4,000 a year. He vetoed the bill to increase his own salary from $4,000 to $10,000, because he took the job at $4,000. The country needs more public officials as conscientious as Governor Moody. Such men are entitled to more pay. But they should not be forced to raise their own salaries.

MAKING THINGS MORE CHEERFUL

The American people are just beginning to learn how to use color effectively in everyday life. The interiors of hotels, for instance, no longer are done in brown and gold, as of yore. Theatres have been brightened up, and some of the old-fashioned gingerbread abandoned. Bright colors entertain the eye more effectively than tons of gingerbread scrollwork.

Most bridges are stimulating to the imagination. They might be made more stimulating by the application of color.

JUSTICE, QUICKLY

Capital punishment, which the state of Michigan doesn't have and which it will soon be considering, may or may not decrease the crime in that state. So far the absence of capital punishment does not seem to have produced more crime in Michigan than one finds in neighbor states. But the best thing to lessen crime that Michigan ever did was to speed up the processes of law to such a degree of rapidity that the man who recently killed a little girl was in prison for life within two or three days after he was caught.

Slow processes in the court, delays of lawyers and judges, red tape, etc., do more to encourage the criminal than the state's freedom from capital punishment. Few potential criminals stop to think through their course. The fact that the state has or has not capital punishment enters little into their plans. They rely on the tricks of the law and the delays of the courts.

If we are going to hang them, let's hang them right away as they do in England and Canada. If we are going to make it imprisonment instead of capital punishment, let's lock them up in the fastest possible time, as Michigan did in the Hotelling case.

Speed and certainty are more important issues than the issue of the electric chair.

FAILURE

There is no more pathetic figure than the man who has plenty of real ability, a hard and earnest worker—but who lacks a personality that wins and holds friends and that inspires loyalty. The quality of leadership, which is a matter of personality more than ability, is the major quality of man. The whole hope of the world is in leadership. Men who are put in places of importance because of their sincerity, information, and ability, and who can't lead, are particularly sad failures.

AN HOUR OLD

Science makes progress in the discovery of how we do things. But a great darkness is yet to be explored. Why are we here? Where are we going? Who said so?

HAPPINESS

Perhaps the philosophy of happiness might be put in one word: Moderation.

New Yorker

—By—
BURTON RASCOE

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—One of the most frivolous fashions left among men who think well of themselves and dress with an eye to the sketches in Vanity Fair seems to be on the wane, even in effete New York, where a male may wear spats and carry a stick and still not be a dandy. I refer to the flossy custom of wearing a flower in the buttonhole. I must admit to a certain self-consciousness in the matter, myself, but still I enjoy seeing large, well-fed fellows in derbies and Chesterfield overcoats, sporting a carnation or even a gardenia, and looking, if not like a bridegroom, at least like some devil-of-a-lad hustling to a rendezvous. In the summertime, when I have the garden as an excuse, I have been known to run to an occasional cornflower, or even a carnation, but I must confess to a certain diffidence at the idea of galloping around town adorned with anything gaudier than these. My fellowmen probably have the same feeling, and so the charming custom is on the wane.

With living places small and stuffy, and with an adjoining population that sneers at movies and has no money for plays, Greenwich Village centers its amusement in its restaurants. Such places as the Archway serve dinner to perhaps a score of patrons each night. Then the tables are cleared and the customers spend the evening playing cards or chess, or checkers. Or they just talk and drink coffee—each costs twenty-five cents a cup when they order nothing else. Such places don't make a lot of money, but the owners are happy in the philanthropic work of providing a haven for Bohemia's psychopaths.

A dollar bill, posted on the outside of a shop window opposite Grand Central station the other day, remained intact, to the surprise of the proprietor. About 100,000 persons passed it during the course of the day, some of them, presumably, hard up or hungry. But not a soul tried to make away with it. Who says this is a city of crooks?

Kellygrams

By FRED C. KELLY

ODD PHASES OF FOOT TRAFFIC

One of the strange caprices of the pedestrian throng was shown a few years ago in Houston, Texas. At the intersection of two principal streets was a busy corner in town. A cigar company had a store on that corner. The property was bought for a big bank building, and the cigar company had to move. It had its choice of establishing a store alongside of the bank, or seeking a location on one of the other three corners at that intersection. The location next to the bank they did not consider at all. The two corners that ranked second and third in desirability were unavailable. That left the cigar company only one corner—the quietest of the four. They took that one. And then what do you suppose happened? Traffic began to increase at that corner until it was the busiest of all—busier, even, than the one that had been first choice.

This was due partly to the fact that the cigar company used a lot of brilliant illumination about its place and partly because the bank in the busy corner made the traffic there decrease and seek an outlet elsewhere.

Men who have studied location values always advise against placing a retail establishment—particularly one dealing in everyday articles—next to a bank. A bank makes for a dead locality. Or, at any rate, it tends to decrease rather than increase traffic. Being open only about six hours a day on the average, a bank has drawing power only for those six hours. Indeed, a bank has no cash drawing power even when it is open. Few persons have occasion to visit a bank compared with the total number on the street. Most of those who do enter it have their minds occupied with finance and are in no mood to stop and buy a gingersnap, or whatever it is, next door.

I heard a retail expert bewailing what he called a flagrant waste of valuable retail locations by banks.

"Over there's a bank building on the best retail corner in town," he said, "and what good does it do the bank? Just lock up the people would be with the bank. If it were three doors up the street in the middle of the block. Putting a bank on a busy corner like that is an extravagance."

However, from the banker's point of view, a location may not be an extravagance. It may derive much indirect benefit. Every man who passes that busy corner is impressed, not only by the fact that the bank exists, but that it is able to build on a valuable piece of ground. This brings the idea of the bank to people's attention, along with the visible suggestion of prosperity, doubtless leads many a person to do his banking there instead of at another institution up the street.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

The Morning Beauty Regime

In the morning start the day right with at least one glass of cold water—two if it's comfortably possible. Personally, I take as many as four or five.

Instead of stumbling from your bed to your bath, stop a few minutes right with a cool shower of water. All the essence of health is flying in at your window. Use it! If you take a morning shower, don't make it a too warm one, or you'll find yourself sleepy when you're through, and too subject to colds afterwards.

If you can stand a cold bath, or at least a cold or cool shower so much the better, but don't shock your system in the name of health. It isn't good for you. A good series of exercises will give the required stimulus to your circulation.

But first cleanse your skin, wash your eyes, spread on a little skin clearing cream again, to coax back the lovely healthy skin of early youth. When ready to dress, finish with a toning lotion. In the winter time use a foundation or a protective base for your make-up. Select a conservative powder—one that tones nicely with the natural shade of your skin. There are powders made in a wide range of colors. The best of which, in my opinion, are made on a nothing cold cream base which protects as well as beautifies. For your rouge, read raspberry. For, perhaps, the most universally becoming daytime shade, blending delightfully into the natural warm colorings of American women. Your lips—stick, of course, must match your rouge.

There has been a great deal said about the need of breakfasts for the business woman. The fast from evening dinner to next day's luncheon is too long to be healthful, particularly when you stop to realize that it actually is a medical fact that the body reaches its lowest resistance during the night hours.

I do not condemn one cup of coffee. I do condemn the deplorable habit which a great many women have of bolting two and three cups. If they would drink milk instead, they would soon feel the benefits physically.

For the woman who is burdened with a gracious abundance of poundage, orange juice can be an excellent breakfast habit! But take plenty of it. Three oranges is none too many. It is refreshing, non-fatening and non-stimulating, and will supply the body with badly needed vitamins which are all important to health.

For the average woman of normal health, either orange juice or a raw apple is such a fine start for a good day! Some of the whole grain or bran cereals are excellent. Substitute whole wheat toast instead of the white bread which is not good for you, and have your egg boiled or poached instead of fried.

We have heard so much about "starting the day right." Begin to develop normal health habits, and see how tremendously your mind and body will respond.

BALD SPOTS

"A nineteen-year-old college girl has several bald spots on the back of her head, some of them as large as a half-dollar. These began after an attack on the flu 10 years ago. She recently consulted a 'hair specialist' (if there be such a thing), who prescribed certain tonics, and also suggested a diet, which is extremely hard for her to follow on account of her having to eat at the table with the other girls and partake of the college food. Will you please suggest a remedy."

"H."

There is no physician who designates himself as a "hair specialist," and anyone so designating himself and giving diets and tonics for hair troubles, is certainly questionable. Some of the so-called "hair specialists" who examine hair under the microscope, many of them prescribing treatments after an examination of hair sent through the mails, are fakes, pure and simple. (No, they're not so simple.)

Go to the library and get the October, 1927, issue of Hygiene and read the article, "Some Bald Facts," by Dr. Arthur J. Cramp. Mr. H.'s is about one of these "specialists." His strong line was that he could make a diagnosis from specimens of hair sent through the mail.

Some hair was plucked from the scalp for hair disorders, many fakes, by any means. Some of them undoubtedly give good massage and other treatments. However, in the case such as you speak of, H., the girl should certainly be in grave danger of continuous and increasing loss of your hair, but it can still be saved by prompt treatment. Fill out the enclosed diagnosis chart and the proper remedy will be sent." (Of course, on receipt of your money.)

Note: It is possible that the fox fur was in a poorly undernourished condition!

Later, under another name, a few hairs of a luxuriant growth from the head of a healthy woman were sent in. Back came the letter, reading word for word like the first letter. Still later, ravelling from a piece of twine, two inches in length, some dyed black and some deep brown, were sent from different addresses. In due time, the stock letters, stating that the microscopic examinations disclosed the roots were in a seriously undernourished condition.

Now, as hair and twine filaments have distinct structures peculiar to themselves, easily discernible under the microscope, it is evident that this "hair specialist" either knew nothing about the microscopic conformation of the hair, or that these were not examined at all.

I've gone into this at length because I want to expose some of the methods of these fakers. I do not want you to get the impression that all of those who treat the scalp for hair disorders are fakes, by any means. Some of them undoubtedly give good massage and other treatments. However, in the case such as you speak of, H., the girl should certainly

SUGGESTIONS

A housewife suggests this method for keeping her kitchen clean in muddy weather. These paper mats may be burned, used, saving the labor of washing. "I save all corrugated cardboard that packages sometimes come wrapped up in. This can be cut into pieces the size of ordinary door mats. I keep one, corrugated side up, on the floor at my back door, so that when the children and delivery people come in they can wipe their shoes on this improvised mat."

Work Table

Have you an old sewing machine that is lumbering the earth? A woman reports that she made it do duty as a handy work table. "We had an old sewing machine that had been relegated to the shed. The idea came to me of removing the treadle wheel and top and covering the top of the machine with linoleum. The result was a nice work table. The drawers are handy to keep things."

have gone to a physician who specializes in skin disorders (a dermatologist).

Alopecia Areta

Now I'll tell you something about the girl's trouble. It is a form of baldness known as Alopecia Areta, and the cause is not known. It may follow some disease, or it may appear in perfectly healthy individuals. Some physicians believe there is a germ infection, and therefore it may be communicable. Many of the cases get well of themselves, especially in youth, without any treatment.

First there should be a thorough physical examination, and any areas of infection, such as from the teeth and tonsils, etc., must be cleared up. The local treatment, Jackson says, is summed up in two words: Patience and Stimulation. The spots are painted with different solutions that stimulate, and perhaps cause a slight inflammation of the skin—such as iodine, ammonia water, lactic acid in 50 per cent water solution—all of which you will have to see your physician about. Massage is useful, and the ultra-violet ray.

The diet should be a full balanced diet, and not a restricted one that the girl was put on. Send for our article on the care of the hair and scalp, H. (Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope, and 2 cents).

Tomorrow: Answers to Correspondents.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—Washington, politically radioactive enough this time to suit anybody.

In 1924 it was the deadest place on the map.

It was headquarters for only one presidential prospect of any consequence, and his prospect was such a cinch that nobody took any interest in it. Calvin Coolidge was absolutely certain to get the Republican nomination, anyway, so, in advance, that was finished business.

Al Smith never visited the capital at all; Bill McAdoo and John W. Davis very briefly and infrequently.

All the scuffling was elsewhere. Besides, there was only one good scrap anywhere—Smith's and McAdoo's. That was a hum-dinger, but otherwise the whole campaign, pre- and post-convention, was monotonous—a mere walkover.

Oh, what a difference this year! Instead of only one candidate here, the town swarms with 'em. Secretary Hoover's making medicine in the commerce department, Jim Watson, Charlie Curtis and Frank Willis are falling over each other on the senate floor. Frank O. Lowden isn't present in person, but his political stomach is in. Charlie Dawes is looking out for his interests—or somebody's. The Coolidge die-hards are still trying to figure two terms out of two terms and a fraction.

Al Smithites and anti-Al Smithites fight daily battles all over the Capital and adjoining Senate and House office buildings, and up and down the subway underneath 'em. Jim Reed bushwhacks indiscriminately, and Al Ritchie hovers on the outskirts, only a short street car ride away, an Annapolis. Assorted "favorite sons" and miscellaneous "dark horses" canvass around everywhere.

Both sides are split seven ways for Sunday.

As all the world knows, the Republicans are busted wide open on the industries-versus-agriculture issue; the Democrats are rent in twain on religion, and neither party can even estimate how badly it's subdivided on the wet-and-dry question.

What's more, the Coolidge-ites Republicans accuse the Democrats of conspiring with the Progressives to cram Hoover—by making Coolidge impossible—down the G. O. P.'s throat, on the theory that Coolidge can't be beaten but may be Hoovered. They're afraid the plot will succeed, too, and the idea of the Democrats dictating a Republican nomination, to their own Democratic advantage, drives 'em almost frantic.

The oil investigation's another source of anxiety.

There are "old guardsmen" in both political camps who are suspicious of it.

Regardless of party, none of them likes the hint of campaign contributions of "big business" origin—"big business" having such a reputation for financing rival tickets alike, in order to be on the right side, no matter who wins, that it's hard to tell where the chips will fall, once somebody begins heaving.

There's no choking them off, of course. They'd raise the country with their outcries before the "safe and sane" old-time element could get a good grip on their windpipes. But they're a pest at a time like this, when the managers already have more than enough to worry about, without a constant threat of the unforeseen to upset all their calculations.

raised. But you would never know them now, in fact I don't know that I should recognize them myself. You must remember they were little young things last summer. Now they are almost a year old, full grown, with strong wings that will carry them anywhere."

"They are such good tempered fellows every one likes them, although they are apt to be a little down-hearted now and then. But then, you know, sadness is a family trait. All we Bluebirds are sad once in a while. Husband told me why this was so only the other day, but I have forgotten the reason."

"That is one of my own failings, boy. I am a bit stupid, or at least not nearly as clever as husband is. The boys have such a fine taste in dress—they inherit it from their father. You remember what a beautiful coat he always wore, don't you?"

"Indeed I do," cried the boy. "It was a lovely color blue—brighter than that shawl and bonnet was wearing. And his vest was a pretty reddish-brown. But haven't finished telling me about the boys. Where are they?"

Spring Valley, Caesar Creek Boys Win Games

CEDARVILLE GIRLS ALSO SURVIVORS IN COURT TOURNAMENT

Bowersville Gives Valley Boys Close Call In Opener

(BULLETIN—3 P. M.)
Bath Twp. reached the semifinals in the boys' division of the tournament by downing Beaver Creek 29 to 18 in the second round Friday afternoon. Bath will play the winner of the Yellow Springs-Spring Valley contest in the semifinals at 2 p. m. Saturday.

BULLETIN
Bellbrook girls advanced to the semifinals in the county basketball tournament by licking the Beaver Creek Twp. sextet 32 to 15 in the first game of the second round on the afternoon program. Friday, Bellbrook will meet the winner of the Ross Twp.-Yellow Springs girls' contest in the semifinals of the upper bracket at 1 p. m. Saturday.

Spring Valley and Caesar Creek Twp. boys' teams and Cedarville girls survived the first round of play in the fourteenth annual Greene County Class B. Basketball tournament at Central High School gymnasium Friday morning. Bowersville came near eliminating one of the big favorites of the tourney in the inaugural game, bowing to Spring Valley boys by a one-point margin, 18 to 17, only after the fiercest kind of a struggle.

Spring Valley had a scant advantage of 9 to 8 at the half-way post but earned its victory through a rally in the closing minutes of play.

In the inaugural game in the girls' division, Cedarville got off to a good start by defeating Caesar Creek feminine tossers 13 to 9 in a rather close contest. The teams were tied 5 to 5 at the half. Caesar Creek Twp. boys finished up the morning program by nosing out the strong O. S. and S. D. Home quintet 27 to 26 in an upset. Dogged perseverance and accuracy at foul shooting enabled Caesar to emerge with a surprising victory. The score at the half was 14 to 14.

Caesar won its game on fouls as the Home scored eleven field goals to ten baskets for the winners. Two free throws made by Patton and Nolan in the last few seconds of play, which would have meant victory, were not allowed because the players overstepped the line.

Spring Valley, in winning its first round contest, shook off a county tournament jinx that has stuck to this school for three years. Previously for three straight years Spring Valley had been eliminated in the first round.

Spring Valley boys will have Yellow Springs, which drew a bye in the opening round, as their opponent in the second round at 4 p. m. Friday. Caesar Creek boys will play their second round contest at 7 p. m. Friday, meeting Bellbrook, the tourney favorite, which also drew a bye in the preliminary round.

Cedarville girls, having survived the first round will encounter strong opposition in their second round engagement with Bath Twp. at 5 p. m. Friday. Bath drew a bye the first round. Bath girls won the girls' division of the tourney in 1927. No games will be played Saturday morning.

Second round schedule Friday follows:

1 p. m.—Beaver girls vs. Bellbrook girls.
2 p. m.—Beaver boys vs. Bath boys.
3 p. m.—Ross girls vs. Yellow Springs girls.
4 p. m.—Yellow Springs boys vs. Spring Valley boys.
5 p. m.—Bath girls vs. Cedarville girls.
7 p. m.—Bellbrook boys vs. Caesar Creek boys.
8 p. m.—Spring Valley girls vs. Bowersville girls.
9 p. m.—Cedarville boys vs. Ross boys.

FAMOUS AUTOS VICTORIOUS

XENIA TEAM STAVES OFF FINAL QUARTER RALLY OF VISITORS

Morris Plan Bank Is Composed Of Former High Players

The Famous Auto Five, local independent basketball team, downed the Morris Plan Bank quintet of Springfield, composed of ex-high school stars, 45 to 39 in a hard-fought game at Central High School gymnasium Wednesday night.

Included in the lineup of the visiting team, were Ginevan, Conn. Beard and Wiles, who were members of the Springfield High School cage squad until January when they were made ineligible for further participation in basketball games through enforcement of the eight-semester playing rule.

These remnants of a champion court team which won ten straight games and was undefeated until it lost several of its stars, gave a fine account of themselves.

Wiles registered fifteen points, Ginevan, eleven; Beard, seven, and Conn, six. Williamson and Dawson, who alternated at the other guard position, are also former high school players.

Gegner and LeSourd were the chief point-makers for the Xenia quintet. Gegner dropped in seven baskets and a free throw for fifteen points. LeSourd helped out with thirteen markers. Leopold made eight and Smith six.

Xenia led 24 to 15 the first half and the final gun snuffed out a strong Springfield rally in the final half which threatened to entirely wipe out the local advantage.

Springfield opened the scoring on a short shot by Ginevan. Gegner made a free try and Beard connected on a set-up. Leopold took Smith's place in the Xenia lineup and Smith went to guard in place of Yeakley. LeSourd sank Xenia's first basket, a short shot. Beard did likewise. Gegner dropped in a neat throw from a corner. Leopold tossed in a short one. Ginevan a free throw and Leopold another easy fielder as the quarter ended in Xenia's favor, 13 to 7.

Gegner recorded a fielder from long-range to start the second quarter. At this juncture the visitors rallied and drew up within two points of Xenia on Ginevan's short shot and two baskets by Wiles in rapid succession. Xenia then stepped out once more with a sudden outbreak of scoring. Gegner made a short shot. Smith dropped in a short one and followed with a ringer from mid-floor. LeSourd looped in a foul, Smith a "sucker" shot and Conn a short attempt as the half ended.

Dawson went in for Williamson. Vannorsdall for Gegner and Yeakley for Leopold to start the second half.

Beard inaugurated the third period with a charity shot. Wiles dropped in a long attempt. LeSourd a foul and Wiles a short one. Ginevan continued the spurt with a long-range basket and Beard also cashed in from mid-floor.

Gegner was rushed back into the fray for Yeakley while Leopold returned in place of Smith. This combination stemmed the tide. Boxwell came through with a "bunny" shot. Gegner followed with a close-in shot. Wiles made a free throw. Dawson missed two fouls but the visitors drew alongside of Xenia on long shots by Conn and Wiles as the period ended with the score tied, 29 to 29.

Xenia won the game in the last quarter when the Springfield defense crumbled under the strain. LeSourd broke through for a short one, breaking the deadlock. Wiles again knotted the count with a long shot. Leopold shattered it once more with a fielder. Again it was tied up on Ginevan's basket and again Xenia went into the lead on a foul by LeSourd.

LeSourd increased the margin to three points on a pretty shot from the side of the court. The score continued to mount on successive baskets by Gegner and LeSourd. Gegner came back with another. Springfield rallied on a long basket by Conn, a follow up by Ginevan and a long shot by Wiles, but Leopold made a short shot and Boxwell a foul as the contest ended.

The Famous Auto Five will play a return game with the Dayton Chrysler here next Wednesday night. The Chryslerers, who ended their season in a tie for first place in the Commercial League, walloped Xenia 53 to 39 three weeks ago here. The score:

ST. BRIGID TOSSERS DEFEATED BY ST. JOSEPH FIVE THURSDAY

Springfield Team Leads All The Way—Ernst Leads Xenia Attack But Defense Unable To Function.

St. Joseph High School notched out a 21 to 7 victory over St. Brigid High School of Xenia in a rather ragged basketball game at Springfield Thursday night.

It was the second victory recorded by St. Joseph over the Xenia parochial school quintet this season. The score of the first game was 19 to 13.

St. Brigid opened the scoring when Ernst, flashy forward, intercepted a poor St. Joseph pass and made good on a set-up shot. The lead was short-lived and St. Joseph began counting baskets with regularity.

St. Joseph led 5 to 2 the first quarter, 16 to 2 at the half, and 19 to 3 in the third quarter. St. Brigid outscored its rivals 4 to 2 in the closing period, but what was the use?

Ernst and Killen were the offensive stars for the visitors, the former with five points and the captain with two markers. Neville played a magnificent defensive game.

Captain Tucker, St. Joseph pivotman, was high-point man for his team with seven counters. Herrington, guard, and MacLean, forward, each contributed six.

St. Brigid hopes to show a reversal of form in its final contest of the season against St. Bernard High of Springfield at Central High School gym next Tuesday night.

ARCHITECTS SUE PAPER FOR $50,000

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Feb. 24—A libel suit, asking $50,000 damages, against the Democrat Publishing Company, publishers of the New Philadelphia Daily Times, was on file in common pleas court here today.

The suit was brought by George Walker and Henry Norwich, architects, who claimed the newspaper damaged their reputations. The paper charged collusion between the architects and the contractor in building the new Junior High School building here. In recent printed articles, according to the petition for damages.

Gibney, a junior, will be available next season. He is one of the finest examples of a running guard, excelling on both defense and offense, that the Blue and White has had in several years. Smith and Buell, sophomore and junior, respectively, will also be heard from in another season. Bell is also a likely possibility.

Returning to the Sidney contest,

OPPORTUNITY WILL KNOCK FOR CENTRAL TOSSERS AT SIDNEY

Victory Will Give Locals Miami Valley Loop Title

Opportunity knocks at the door of Central High School's basketball team in the closing game of the season with Sidney High School at Sidney Friday night.

The Blue and White needs a victory over Sidney to win the undisputed championship of the Miami Valley League. A victory will also give Xenia a perfect average in the loop with five victories and no defeats.

In the event of defeat, a three-cornered tie for first place would exist between Xenia, Piqua and Sidney, as each school would have a record of four wins and one loss in five games.

Four regular members of the Xenia squad will sing their swan song in this contest as far as athletics are concerned. Captain Bill Clemans, Leroy Doak, Bob Morton and Eddie Higgins will be participating in their last regularly scheduled basketball game as all are seniors.

These four players will be sadly missed and don't think they won't. Without Captain Clemans in the lineup, Central has an average team. With him in there directing the offense and defense and putting confidence into his teammates, Xenia has a quintet above the average, a team that is on a par with any in this section of the state, bar none.

Doak and Morton are the chief point-makers while in Higgins, Coach Kolb has uncovered a back guard, who can take the ball off the back-board and who can drop in needed baskets at critical moments.

Gibney, a junior, will be available next season. He is one of the finest examples of a running guard, excelling on both defense and offense, that the Blue and White has had in several years. Smith and Buell, sophomore and junior, respectively, will also be heard from in another season. Bell is also a likely possibility.

Returning to the Sidney contest, things shape up for a Xenia victory. Sidney did not look like a world-beater in losing to Roosevelt High School at Dayton, 32 to 20 Thursday night. Xenia must watch one Sidney player carefully. He is Collins, a forward, who broke loose for sixteen of his team's twenty points against Roosevelt.

ST. BRIGID TOSSERS DEFEATED BY ST. JOSEPH FIVE THURSDAY

Springfield Team Leads All The Way—Ernst Leads Xenia Attack But Defense Unable To Function.

St. Joseph High School notched out a 21 to 7 victory over St. Brigid High School of Xenia in a rather ragged basketball game at Springfield Thursday night.

It was the second victory recorded by St. Joseph over the Xenia parochial school quintet this season. The score of the first game was 19 to 13.

St. Brigid opened the scoring when Ernst, flashy forward, intercepted a poor St. Joseph pass and made good on a set-up shot. The lead was short-lived and St. Joseph began counting baskets with regularity.

St. Joseph led 5 to 2 the first quarter, 16 to 2 at the half, and 19 to 3 in the third quarter. St. Brigid outscored its rivals 4 to 2 in the closing period, but what was the use?

Ernst and Killen were the offensive stars for the visitors, the former with five points and the captain with two markers. Neville played a magnificent defensive game.

Captain Tucker, St. Joseph pivotman, was high-point man for his team with seven counters. Herrington, guard, and MacLean, forward, each contributed six.

St. Brigid hopes to show a reversal of form in its final contest of the season against St. Bernard High of Springfield at Central High School gym next Tuesday night.

ARCHITECTS SUE PAPER FOR $50,000

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Feb. 24—A libel suit, asking $50,000 damages, against the Democrat Publishing Company, publishers of the New Philadelphia Daily Times, was on file in common pleas court here today.

The suit was brought by George Walker and Henry Norwich, architects, who claimed the newspaper damaged their reputations. The paper charged collusion between the architects and the contractor in building the new Junior High School building here, in recent printed articles, according to the petition for damages.

Victory Will Give Locals Miami Valley Loop Title

Opportunity knocks at the door of Central High School's basketball team in the closing game of the season with Sidney High School at Sidney Friday night.

The Blue and White needs a victory over Sidney to win the undisputed championship of the Miami Valley League. A victory will also give Xenia a perfect average in the loop with five victories and no defeats.

In the event of defeat, a three-cornered tie for first place would exist between Xenia, Piqua and Sidney, as each school would have a record of four wins and one loss in five games.

Four regular members of the Xenia squad will sing their swan song in this contest as far as athletics are concerned. Captain Bill Clemans, Leroy Doak, Bob Morton and Eddie Higgins will be participating in their last regularly scheduled basketball game as all are seniors.

These four players will be sadly missed and don't think they won't. Without Captain Clemans in the lineup, Central has an average team. With him in there directing the offense and defense and putting confidence into his teammates, Xenia has a quiet above the average, a team that is on a par with any in this section of the state, bar none.

Doak and Morton are the chief point-makers while in Higgins, Coach Kolb has uncovered a back guard, who can take the ball off the back-board and who can drop in needed baskets at critical moments.

Gibney, a junior, will be available next season. He is one of the finest examples of a running guard, excelling on both defense and offense, that the Blue and White has had in several years. Smittle and Buell, sophomore and junior, respectively, will also be heard from in another season. Bell is also a likely possibility.

Returning to the Sidney contest, things shape up for a Xenia victory. Sidney did not look like a world-beater in losing to Roosevelt High School at Dayton, 32 to 20 Thursday night. Xenia must watch one Sidney player carefully. He is Collins, a forward, who broke loose for sixteen of his team's twenty points against Roosevelt.

that bounced off bridge work since Jim Jeffries quit wearing rompers.

Fighters used to do their training in saloons, but now they hold their daily workouts in libraries.

Fans have changed, too. Guys who used to squak at paying a buck to see John L. Sullivan annihilate 11 longshoremen, now freely pass over 50 fish to watch 10 rounds of lovemaking between two movie stars.

The biggest difference we can see between the bag ears of yore and the present-day panorama of pugilists is that the oldsters only snored when knocked out, while the moderns doze on their feet.

Before the war a boxer was known by his stable, but today a pug's only connection is with a bank. His interest in life is computed semi-annually.

The average flatcuff performer of 1928 is an American youth with an Irish attitude and a Scotch disposition. He fights with both hands in the ring, but in private life is a constant clinch—with his bankroll.

An Argentine diplomat has been uncovered who is a first-class pugilist. He believes the kayo is far mightier than the caucis. His motto is: never right-cross a nose bridge unless you break it.

Years ago this ambassador of banged beaks almost won a world boxing title. But he looked intellectual and, of course, they ruled him out.

Brains in the ring business are about as scarce as chorus girls at a church social—and as welcome.

This envoy of which we spoke, has entered the Olympics, and it is his ambition to show the assembled canvas inspectors of the world that while he may be a sensation when it comes to syllables neither does he stutter with his fists.

Foreign Menace Doesn't Frighten Hollywood Now

By DIXIE SHELBY

(Los Angeles Correspondent of the International Illustrated News.)

MUCH HAS BEEN said and a great deal written about the so-called "foreign invasion" of the motion picture industry, but after all the hue and cry has died down denizens of Hollywood have found out that they've been quivering in fear before the hollow shell of a scarecrow.

At one time, to be true, it looked as though native-born American players were going to be swept aside in the rush for European importations.

You heard all sorts of talk about this one and that, and how he or she would soon be the idol of all the more or less United States.

And now that all the shooting's over, what do we find?

Just exactly one—ONE—imported star is firmly established in the celluloid factories, and that one is Greta Garbo.

What has happened to Pola Nissen? To Lya de Putti? And to a score of others who were even less noted?

Incidentally, what did really happen to Pola Negri? What has she done—if anything—since the time she appeared over here in "Passion" and created something more than a furore?

Did Negri's vogue wane—or was she given too many "sausage" pictures? The bald fact remains that Pola is still working on a six months' contract, and at the expiration of that period her option MAY be renewed—or may not. Nobody can tell.

Among all the players mentioned above, Greta Garbo seems to have "taken hold" the best. Miss Garbo came here unheralded. She enjoyed none of the publicity that preceded Negri and Jennings. Greta was just another foreign leading woman and took a chance on being taken or left. Of course, Miss Garbo was fortunate in the important matter of casting. She invariably found herself in good stories and this right from the start. She was a new type and, besides being a type, she could act. It seems that Greta just couldn't do anything that wasn't interesting and, according to our best authorities, it is better to be interesting than beautiful.

It wouldn't be fair to write about foreigners who have failed, but suffice it to say that of the many who were called over here few have been chosen by the public. The scare about importations is over and the American actor is reassured that he can do things as well as his foreign cousin.

GEORGE BOTTORFF CLAIMED BY DEATH

George Bottorff, 37, Xenia, died Friday morning at the Dayton State Hospital.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mary Bottorff and four children, George, Jr., Francis, Jean and Helen. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Bottorff, this city and the following brothers and sisters, also survive: Mrs. Grace Schlosser, Indianapolis; Bart, Detroit; Mrs. Roy Stroup, Springfield; Frank, Xenia; and Ben, Xenia. Mrs. Della West, Cleveland, and Mrs. George Potter, Dayton.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed. Mr. Bottorff was a resident of Xenia twenty-two years.

DEATH CLAIMS MRS. ANNA MARY KNOX

Mrs. Anna Mary Knox, 77, formerly of Xenia and widow of John J. Knox, died at her home, 1225 Lincoln Blvd., Dayton, Thursday night. She had been in failing health four years and a stroke of paralysis three months ago and another Thursday hastened her death.

Mrs. Knox resided her seventy-seventh year last January 8. She was born in Greene County and lived here until seven years ago. She leaves two daughters, Mrs. Miriam Seeley, Kenmore, O., and Mrs. Mabel Galt, with whom she had made her home.

Mrs. Knox was a member of the First M. E. Church, this city. Funeral arrangements have not been made.

Foreign Menace Doesn't Frighten Hollywood Now

By DIXIE SHELBY

(Los Angeles Correspondent of the International Illustrated News.)

MUCH HAS BEEN said and a great deal written about the so-called "foreign invasion" of the motion picture industry, but after all the hue and cry has died down denizens of Hollywood have found out that they've been quivering in fear before the hollow shell of a scarecrow.

At one time, to be true, it looked as though native-born American players were going to be swept aside in the rush for European imports.

You heard all sorts of talk about this one and that, and how he or she would soon be the idol of all the more or less United States.

And now that all the shooting's over, what do we find?

Just exactly one—ONE—imported star is firmly established in the celluloid factories, and that one is Greta Garbo.

What has happened to Pola Negri? To Lya de Putti? And to a score of others who were even less noted?

Incidentally, what did really happen to Pola Negri? What has she done—anything—since the time she appeared over here in "Passion" and created something more than a furore?

Did Negri's vogue wane—or was she given too many "sausage" pictures?

The bold fact remains that Pola is still working on a six months' contract, and at the expiration of that period her option MAY be renewed—or may not. Nobody can tell.

Among all the players mentioned above, Greta Garbo seems to have "taken hold" the best. Miss Garbo came here unheralded. She enjoyed none of the publicity that preceded Negri and Jennings. Greta was just another foreign leading woman and took a chance on being taken or left. Of course, Miss Garbo was fortunate in the important matter of casting. She invariably found herself in good stories and this right from the start. She was a new type and, besides being a type, she could act. It seems that Greta just couldn't do anything that wasn't interesting and, according to our best authorities, it is better to be interesting than beautiful.

It wouldn't be fair to write about foreigners who have failed, but suffice it to say that of the many who were called over here few have been chosen by the public. The scare about importations is over and the American actor is reassured that he can do things as well as his foreign cousin.

GEORGE BOTTORFF CLAIMED BY DEATH

George Bottorff, 37, Xenia, died Friday morning at the Dayton State Hospital.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mary Bottorff and four children, George, Jr., Francis, Jean and Helen. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Bottorff, this city and the following brothers and sisters, also survive: Mrs. Grace Schipper, Indianapolis, Ind.; Mrs. Roy Stroup, Springfield; Frank, Xenia; Ben, Xenia; Mrs. Della West, Cleveland; and Mrs. George Potter, Dayton.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed. Mr. Bottorff was a resident of Xenia twenty-two years.

DEATH CLAIMS MRS. ANNA MARY KNOX

Mrs. Anna Mary Knox, 77, formerly of Xenia and widow of John J. Knox, died at her home, 1925 Lincoln Blvd., Dayton, Thursday night.

She had been in failing health four years and a stroke of paralysis three months ago and another Thursday hastened her death.

Mrs. Knox resided her seventy-seventh year last January 8. She was born in Greene County and lived here until seven years ago. She leaves two daughters, Mrs. Miriam Seeley, Kenmore, O., and Mrs. Mabel Gail, with whom she had made her home.

Mrs. Knox was a member of the First M. E. Church this city. Funeral arrangements have not been made.

HEARING ON LIQUOR CHARGES IS HELD

Hearings of Michael J. Dugan, Wheeler Kimbro, colored, and James Blair, all of Xenia, on charges of liquor law violations, opened before Judge S. C. Wright in Probate Court Friday morning and were being continued Friday afternoon.

Dugan, proprietor of a pool and billiard parlor and soft drink establishment on N. Whiteman St., and Kimbro, operator of an E. Main St. pool room, are charged with possessing liquor. Blair is accused of unlawful delivery of liquor.

Arrested following raids conducted by state prohibition agents assisted by county officers last Friday afternoon, the trio entered not guilty pleas in Probate Court. Each was released under $600 bond.

OFFICIALS GUESTS FOR SAFETY MOVIE

City officials, members of the police and fire departments, employees of the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. and the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. had the opportunity of witnessing a special safety motion picture film at the fire engine house Thursday afternoon.

The film showed the proper methods to be used in reviving persons electrically shocked, partly drowned or overcome by smoke or gas fumes.

The picture, considered of great educational value, was shown under auspices of The Dayton Power and Light Co. and was presented by Xenia officials of the company headed by Manager E. H. Heathman.

FRONTIER FIGURE PASSES TO DEATH

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 24.—George Urban, Jr., 78, one of the most noted figures of the Niagara frontier, died early today at his estate in Cheektowaga. It was in the "log cabin" rendezvous on his estate that he conceived the idea of booming Grover Cleveland, his friend, for president.

Urban backed Thomas Edison morally and financially in Edison's early inventive days before he became famous.

DAVIS FIGHT AGAIN WILL REACH POLLS

CLEVELAND, Feb. 24.—For the second time within six months, the Harry L. Davis charter amendment proposal, calling for a mayorality form of municipal government, and substituting a ward system of voting for that of the present proportional representation plan in Cleveland, will go to a vote of the people.

The date has been set as April 24, following the city council's approval of the Davis ordinance last night by a vote of 20 to 2.

SICK WOMAN SOON RECOVERS

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"A neighbor advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which she said helped her so much. So I bought a few bottles and tried it out. It sure helped me wonderfully. I felt much better. My work is no longer a dread to me. If I hear of any one who is troubled the way I was, I will gladly recommend the Vegetable Compound to them and I will answer any letters in regard to the same."—Mrs. Bertha Meacham, 1134 N. Penn. Ave., Lansing, Mich.

"I had been sickly every since I was fifteen years old. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I got so I could do all my housework and I am in good health."—Mrs. Marie K. Williams, Ketchikan, Alaska.

From Michigan to Alaska, from Maine to Oregon and from Connecticut to California letters are continually being written by grateful women recommending Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

The Compound is made from roots and herbs and has been in use for over fifty years.

BIDS FOR HATCHERY WILL BE RECEIVED

Bids for the construction of an eight-pond fish hatchery on the site recently purchased for that purpose by the state from Dr. D. E. Spahr, will be asked this week by the fish and game division of the state board of agriculture, it is learned.

The hatchery site is located on the Springfield Pike, a short distance north of Xenia.

were guests of Mrs. Stewart, Dayton, Wednesday.

ST. JOHN'S A. M. E. CHURCH Christians must endure hardships as good soldiers. In order to win the fight, and for Christians to endure they must be revived or else they will continue to grow cold and indifferent. Therefore, every member and friend is expected to attend the revival meetings now going on which are being conducted by the Rev. L. C. Ridley. His text for Friday evening will be "Nashville the Leper."

Rev. Ridley has prepared a special message for Sunday at 3:00 p. m., subject, "The Devil's Address in Xenia." You can not afford to miss it. Rev. Hutchison will sing special solos during the meeting.

Meetings begin promptly at 7:30 o'clock each evening.

HEARING ON LIQUOR CHARGES IS HELD

Hearings of Michael J. Dugan, Wheeler Kimbro, colored, and James Blair, all of Xenia, on charges of liquor law violations, opened before Judge S. C. Wright in Probate Court Friday morning and were being continued Friday afternoon.

Dugan, proprietor of a pool and billiard parlor and soft drink establishment on N. Whiteman St., and Kimbro, operator of an E. Main St. pool room, are charged with possessing liquor. Blair is accused of unlawful delivery of liquor.

Arrested following raids conducted by state prohibition agents assisted by county officers last Friday afternoon, the trio entered not guilty pleas in Probate Court. Each was released under $500 bond.

OFFICIALS GUESTS FOR SAFETY MOVIE

City officials, members of the police and fire departments, employees of the Ohio Bell Telephone Co. and the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. had the opportunity of witnessing a special safety motion picture film at the fire engine house Thursday afternoon.

The film showed the proper methods to be used in reviving persons electrically shocked, partly drowned or overcome by smoke or gas fumes.

The picture, considered of great educational value, was shown under auspices of The Dayton Power and Light Co. and was presented by Xenia officials of the company headed by Manager E. H. Heathman.

FRONTIER FIGURE PASSES TO DEATH

RUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 24.—George Urban, Jr., 78, one of the most noted figures of the Niagara frontier, died early today at his estate in Cheektowaga. It was in the "log cabin" rendezvous on his estate that he conceived the idea of the booming Grover Cleveland, his friend, for president.

Urban backed Thomas Edison morally and financially in Edison's early inventive days before he became famous.

Wynne in Politics

Chet Wynne, Notre Dame football star of 1922, has filed his candidacy for the Nebraska state legislature. Wynne, football and track coach of Creighton university, once held the high hurdles record and is interested in Omaha amateur theatricals.

Poor Rich Girl

Pretty Katherine Elizabeth Tierney, daughter of wealthy New York parents, tired of luxury and ease, skipped away from a Tarrytown, N. Y., college. Katherine was later discovered working as a maid-servant in a home in Kew Gardens, N. Y.

DAVIS FIGHT AGAIN WILL REACH POLLS

CLEVELAND, Feb. 24.—For the second time within six months, the Harry L. Davis charter amendment proposal, calling for a mayor, ality form of municipal government, and substituting a ward system of voting for that of the present proportional representation plan in Cleveland, will go to a vote of the people.

The date has been set as April 24, following the city council's approval of the Davis ordinance last night by a vote of 20 to 2.

SICK WOMAN SOON RECOVERS

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"A neighbor advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which she said helped her so much. So I bought a few bottles and tried it out. It sure helped me wonderfully. I felt much better. My work is no longer a dread to me. If I hear of any one who is troubled the way I was, I will gladly recommend the Vegetable Compound to them and I will answer any letters in regard to the same."—Mrs. Bertha Meacham, 1134 N. Penn. Ave., Lansing, Mich.

"I had been sickly every since I was fifteen years old. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I got so I could do all my housework and I am in good health."—Mrs. Marie K. Williams, Ketchikan, Alaska.

From Michigan to Alaska, from Maine to Oregon and from Connecticut to California letters are continually being written by grateful women recommending Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

The Compound is made from roots and herbs and has been in use for over fifty years.

BIDS FOR HATCHERY WILL BE RECEIVED

Bids for the construction of an eight-pond fish hatchery on the site recently purchased for that purpose by the state from Dr. D. E. Spahr, will be asked this week by the fish and game division of the state board of agriculture, it is learned.

The hatchery site is located on the Springfield Pike, a short distance north of Xenia.

It is expected that the hatchery will be built this spring or summer. The site of the Spahr farm was the old pumping station of the Xenia Water Co., before the municipally-owned water plant of Xenia commenced operations.

I Have Said in My Heart

By IDA H. McCLONE GIBSON
REAL BEAUTY

If there were more attention paid to the awakening and developing of psychic charm there would be less need of artificial aids to beauty. The soul can supply all attributes which will give the face that kindly expression that often glorifies physical beauty.

It is one cosmetic the application of which never fails. One might suggest that the first agent for internal application is charity towards one's fellows.

If kindness is used often and liberally it will soften and beautify the expression of any face as much as it broadens the soul. The most beautiful women I have ever known are those who have forgotten self and whose sense of humor keeps them from worrying over trivial things.

If one would only have a sunshine club of one's own and attend it religiously every morning at its awakening it would do more toward rounding out the hollows and brightening the eyes than anything I know.

Enhancing the beauty of the face is a subject of deep interest with every human being, man or woman, but rarely is there anything done which will enhance the charm of the spirit although this gives the high light to any regularity of feature and delicacy of skin which alone makes a face perfect.

There is a trinity in all beauty. The physical, the mental and the moral condition must always enter into its reality.

Sometimes one gets a spurious imitation composed of regular features and the contents of one's vanity box but no one is deceived by it except the person who hopes to "get by" with the imitation.

Memo: It behooves a woman to devote a certain part of each day to the care of her body, the nurturing of her mind and the adorning of her soul if she would merit the adjective of beautiful.

Farm Notes

BORERS VOTE FOR SLOPPY PLOWING

Senator Gooding (R) of Idaho, chairman, leads the way into one of the rooms. It is ten by twelve and has nine cots. Under one of the bunks he finds three "dead soldiers" and asks the official stenographer to make note of it.

At another similar bunkhouse, with its foul smelling air, the committee talks to a young white boy. A fuzzy mustache spread his upper lip.

"The place is no good," he tells the committee. "It's not sanitary and is full of bedbugs and lice. I know only two men here in the camp who have made any money."

He says further that coal and iron police won't let the workers leave camps, and declares there is plenty of liquor and that there are disorderly houses nearby. Gooding again instructs the stenographer to put this on the record for the senate.

Up the road a bit the committee encounters a tattered negro. He left the camp after spending one day in the bunkhouse.

"It simply wasn't no good," he declares. "I was like a blind dog in a hole."

These were composite pictures painted for the committee today in the inspection of mining camps conducted by union officials. They are typical of the entire district. Tomorrow the operators will take charge of the tour and the committee will give a day to hearing their side of the case.

Today's itinerary took the committee to the Mon, Run and Allegheny Valley districts, all within close proximity to Pittsburgh. The big mines in the Pittsburgh region are owned by the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation and the Pittsburgh Coal Company, both of which are operating non-union.

The committee now plans to extend the tour to Monday by taking a flying trip into the central Pennsylvania fields.

SENATE PROBES LEARN OF MINING FIELD CONDITIONS

ting out," she says. "They called names at them as children will. Two of my children were in the group. Soon the strike breakers, all negroes, turned and fired into the children. I rushed out to the children. The police warned me to get away. I told them they had no right to come on private property to take the bread out of our One of them grabbed me.

"I hit him in the jaw with my free hand. Then something struck the back of my head and I was unconscious. When I came to, a pair of handcuffs were on my wrist. I demanded to be set free. The policeman told me to 'go to hell.' He twisted the handcuff until the blood came. I was marched up the railroad track and held for an hour. I saw two policemen with machine guns and said to the woman next to me, 'They aren't going to give us a hearing.' The policeman replied, 'These guns aren't for you, they're for your men.'

The scene changes to a bunk house for negro non-union miners. At the back runs a dirty stream. It is used to carry off waste. Some of the workers have just come out of the pit, 150 feet below. The senate committee corals them in a semicircle and shoots a rapid-fire of questions at them.

"I been here two months and ain't got nothing," says one. "The mine is full of water and they don't give us cars or tools to get out the coal."

"How much do you get net, after all expenses are paid, at pay day every two weeks?" is asked of several of them.

The answers range from "nothing" to "$2.35 to $15. The last came from the huskiest man in the group. The company pays the men sixty-five cents a ton for mining coal but take out board and lodging, tools, stores, etc., so that on pay day few of the men have ready cash.

Senator Gooding (R) of Idaho, chairman, leads the way into one of the rooms. It is ten by twelve and has nine cots. Under one of the bunks he finds three "dead soldiers" and asks the official stenographer to make note of it.

At another similar bunkhouse, with its foul smelling air, the committee talks to a young white boy. A fuzzy mustache spread his upper lip.

"The place is no good," he tells the committee. "It's not sanitary and is full of bedbugs and lice. I know only two men here in the camp who have made any money."

He says further that coal and iron police won't let the workers leave camps, and declares there is plenty of liquor and that there are disorderly houses nearby. Gooding again instructs the stenographer to put this on the record for the senate.

Up the road a bit the committee encounters a tattered negro. He left the camp after spending one day in the bunkhouse.

"It simply wasn't no good," he declares. "I was like a blind dog in a hole."

These were composite pictures painted for the committee today in the inspection of mining camps conducted by union officials. They are typical of the entire district. Tomorrow the operators will take charge of the tour and the committee will give a day to hearing their side of the case.

Today's itinerary took the committee to the Mon, Run and Allegheny Valley districts, all within close proximity to Pittsburgh. The big mines in the Pittsburgh region are owned by the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation and the Pittsburgh Coal Company, both of which are operating non-union.

The committee now plans to extend the tour to Monday by taking a flying trip into the central Pennsylvania fields.

REAL BEAUTY

If there were more attention paid to the awakening and developing of psychic charm there would be less need of artificial aids to beauty. The soul can supply all attributies which will give the face that kindly expression that often glorifies physical beauty.

It is one cosmetic the application of which never fails. One might suggest that the first agent for internal application is charity towards one's fellows.

If kindness is used often and liberally it will soften and beautify the expression of any face as much as it broadens the soul. The most beautiful women I have ever known are those who have forgotten self and whose sense of humor keeps them from worrying over trivial things.

If one would only have a sunshine club of one's own and attend

it religiously every morning at his awakening it would do more to ward rounding out the hollows and brightening the eyes than anything

I know.

Enhancing the beauty of the face is a subject of deep interest with every human being, man or woman, but rarely is there anything done which will enhance the charm of the spirit although this gives the high light to any regularity of feature and delicacy of skin which alone makes a face perfect.

There is a trinity in all beauty.

The physical, the mental and the moral condition must always enter into its reality.

Sometimes one gets a spurious

imitation composed of regular features and the contents of one's vanity box but no one is deceived

if it except the person who hopes to "get by" with the imitation.

Memo: It behooves a woman to devote a certain part of each day to the care of her body, the nurturing of her mind, and the adoring of jective of beautiful.

At another similar luncheon,

GOOFY MOVIES

HEAD THIS FIRST:
Jill Justin, ultra-modern at 20, and adorably pretty, starts out on a moonlit night in August, accompanied by her brother Tony, to attend a harvest festival in their home town of Elliston, W. Va.

The two run into an automobile hold-up. Jill is kidnapped by bandits, and Jack Stuart rescues her and returns her to her home.

It is the old, old story revamped Jack stops for a visit and remains to wed the lovely Jill, and three years later three children have come to bless their home—and hard times, too.

Then comes the Great Change. Stuart and Tony Justin buy a tungsten mine on a tax title, and sell a fourth interest for $100,000 to Pat Sweeney, millionaire from Chicago, and the father of Mary, whom he has nicknamed "Mike," a typical flapper, but a "square shooter," as even her enemies admit. Jill Stuart and Mike clash at their first meeting, when the wife thinks "her Jack" is too much interested in Mike.

In six months' time the Stuarts have spent more than $12,000. Jack is offered an executive position at the glass works, but says he's going into business. He inventories the family expenditures, and questions the propriety of his wife's spendings, and marital relations become strained.

Gossip links the name of Jack with Nita Ravelli, likewise Jill and Professor Le Tarte are discussed. Jill and her brother Tony accept a dancing engagement at Pittsburgh. Mike Sweeney gives a party in their honor at her home, and plans another, a limousine party for them in Pittsburgh, the next day. She ignores Amity Smythe in her invitations, after Amity throws an uncalculated remark at Jill. Then Jill heaps coals of fire on Amity's head by asking Mike to include her in the limousine party. This is too much for the would-be hard-boiled Amity, who breaks down and weeps.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XXXI

"He's the best dancer in Elliston—with the exception of Tony," said Jill, inconsiderately disregarding the fact that Jack fondly imagined himself almost if not quite, Tony's equal in the more common dance steps.

He looked at her and a little hateful suspicion took lodgment at that moment in his heart and mind, a suspicion that was soon to be given something on which to feed.

Pat Sweeney more than "opened his heart" that night to his daughter's guests. Pat liked to do things right. He enjoyed being called a "jolly good fellow." But Pat wanted at least a showing of appreciation for his efforts. Ingratitude and failure to appreciate him was lead in his heart.

Mike had invited some twenty couples, besides those of the drug store count. Everyone had come; they always did when the Sweeney entertained. So the party numbered close to fifty. A quick mental estimate at 2 o'clock told Pat the party already had cost him over $300, not counting the extras. He called Tony to one side.

"Get this bunch o' moon-lushers on their way!" he entreated his young friend, almost tearfully.

Tony passed the word to Jill, who passed it on. In five minutes part of those scheduled for the Pittsburgh party had donned their wraps. It was the start of the exodus. Jill waited. Her "other half" was absent. Some time later the welkin knew the exodus was under way. It rang merrily. And still Jill waited. It occurred to her that it was getting to be something of a habit.

Finally she went out and climbed into their sedan, starting up the motor to heat the interior, for the November air was cold. Her heart told her that Jack was with Nita Ravelli in some one of the numerous cozy corners in the big, old-fashioned "House That Jack Built." Having a petting party, presumably, for she had noticed that both of them were in a very sociable mood.

She looked out into the misty gray of the faint moonlit morning. All the other cars had departed. Suddenly she caught the crunching sound of someone walking along the gravelled path. Jack at last! She saw the outlines of a man's figure against the skyline and opened the car door as the figure stepped from the walk and came toward the sedan. There was a dull ache in her heart, an ache that had been growing for months, for she felt that Jack and she were drifting slowly but surely apart. But she would make no reference to his evident philandering. If he—

She started back, clutching at the door to pull it shut. The man was not Jack. It was Professor Le Tarte, and the professor was intoxicated!

"Thish ish luck!" he gurgled, thickly, as he grabbed the inside handle of the door and placed a foot on the running board. "I thought I wush gonna have 't hooft it int' town! But m' frindish Stu'rsh'll gimme lift, I gesh!"

"No, no—wait!" protested Jill, placing her hand against his shoulder to prevent his entrance. "Jack—my husband—Isn't here yet!"

"So mush bettr!" He laughed drunkenly and pushed past her, flopping sprawled out on the back seat. She was helpless. And so was the professor, now that he had found a place to rest his weary legs. The warmth of the car's interior sent him into dreamland within a minute.

And thus Jack found them later, the professor sprawled across the full length of the back seat, and Jill waited for Jack.

Jill huddled up in the other, sleepy and tired, miserable in heart, body and mind.

She told him calmly and briefly just what had happened, and she felt convinced, even as she told it, that he believed she was lying. Then he told her story which, as it happened, and she herself came to know afterwards, was the truth. As he told it, however, she believed of him just as she felt sure he believed of her—that he was lying!

Puppets, the both of them, of Easy Money—money that had come quick and unexpected, obtained at the cost of only a slight effort; money unearned by real work, and therefore unappreciated. And now that same money was turning them against each other. For had they both been busy, as during the first four years of their marriage, they would have had no time nor inclination for parties, and it was the parties that brought about their misunderstandings—as in the present instance.

"Where does your—er—friend live?" asked Jack as he turned the car from the River Road into the city street. He was told that she had no idea where the professor lived.

"Well," he said, shooting a disdainful glance at the sprawling figure on the seat, a figure that was an excellent replica, had he but known it, of what his own had been only a short time before, when Pat Sweeney had found him asleep in a Morris chair in his private study, "what are we gonna do with him? That's what I'd like to know. We can't dump him out in the street; we can't take him home with us—at least we won't—and I don't care to be seen at this hour in the morning unloading him at any hotel. So the question is—what are we to do?"

"It's only a few blocks from here to the hospital," suggested Jill, her woman's wit finding a way out of their quandary. "Why not drive there with him, say that he was taken ill at the party, and leave him for the doctors to sober up? It's a terrible imposition on them, but it's a way out for us."

This did Professor Le Tarte happen afterwards, was the truth. As he pen to find himself all dressed up in a cotton flannel nightgown, when he finally woke up close to noon on the day following the festive evening in the "House That Jack Built." And how, please, would he like his eggs and toast? And did he care for grapefruit and cream in his coffee?

Yes, he told the pretty nurse, he cared for grapefruit—but not in his coffee. He also liked cream.

So it is in the Game of Life. We make our move, place a pawn here, there. Then the Devil of Chance springs up, kicks over our castle of cards, and leaves us hanging in the air, metaphorically. Or, as in the professor's case, the player does a flip-flop and lands in bed with somebody waiting to hand him his toast and coffee on a silver platter! Life!

Something along this line might have been percolating through the mind of Jack Stuart that morning, as Jill and he walked out of the garage where they kept their sedan, into the murky chill of early morning. He was tired, sleepy and sick.

"It's beginning to strike me," he said, with a noticeable emphasis on the pronoun, "that we're playing an all-around fool game! Maybe you find a lotta fun in this kind of thing, but I'll be darned if I do!"

She made no reply to his irritable remark—an obvious offering for an argument. Jill chose always to air her personal affairs within the confines of her own household. It was after they had reached the privacy of their room, and both of them had secured the refreshing, soothing benefits of a hot bath and cold shower, that she gave voice to her thoughts.

"If you think, Jack," she said, "if you believe for one moment that I am enjoying these crazy, hootch-kuzzling parties, you are vastly mistaken. Maybe if I drank the vile stuff I'd get what you all call the 'glorious kick' that your cocktails carry. But the more I see of its effects, the less desire I have to try it. As for these parties, I'd forty times over rather have a quiet little home where the children could get out of doors, where I could do my own housework, and we could live decently. Nothing would please Dad more than to have us back at the old home with him and—"

"There you go again—harping on that 'old home' stuff," cut in the man who had just been denouncing the "party stuff" and calling it the "fool game." "For the Lord's sake, forget it!" Oh, inconsistency, thy name is Man—when he wants something and doesn't know what else again. This strange antipathy of Jack's for her old home was beyond her understanding. His argument about "disliking to be under obligation to his wife's relatives" was nonsense to her. What belonged to him belonged to her, and by the same token, what belonged to her belonged equally to him. "she asked herself, was that real reason? She had her doubts" (TO BE CONTINUED)
